MISS SADIE PEO PASSES AWAY

DIES FROM EFFECTS OF AN OPERATION PERFORMED
FOR APPENDICITIS.

The people of this village and vicinity were shocked on Monday evening, when they learned of the death of Miss Sadie Peo, which occurred in Kingston, Ont., shortly before five o'clock that afternoon.

Miss Peo, who had been in failing health since the 5th of last May, was taken to Kingston on Tuesday of last week, and on the following day she underwent an operation for appendicitis. The operation was in every way successful, and everything pointed to her speedy recovery, but on Monday morning complications set in, and she failed rapidly until the end came. The remains were brought to the Cape on the Tuesday morning boat and taken to her home, near Millens Bay.

Miss Peo, who was 28 years and 3 months old, was born in the town of Cape Vincent and had always made it her home. She was a young woman who, by her kind disposition and amiable ways, had made a host of friends, all of whom will sincerely regret to learn of her demise.

She is survived by five brothers, James A., of this town; Joseph and J. R., of Rochester; F. H., of Buffalo, and O. E. of Ogdensburg; also three sisters, Mrs. Fayette Hammond, of Carthage; Mrs. George Wilder, of Smithville, and Mrs. Fred Fowler, of Rochester.

On account of the inability to locate two of the brothers, who are traveling salesmen, the hour of the funeral cannot be stated, but, at this writing, it is thought that it will be held from the house on Thursday at either 10 in the morning or 2 in the afternoon. The service will be conducted by the Rev. Charles T. Raynor, rector of St. John's church, of this village. Cape Vincent Chapter, O. E. S., of which deceased was a member, will attend in a body and conduct the services at the grave.

RECEIVES SCHOLARSHIP CHECK—Robert J. Bates, left, 18, of 707 William street, Dexter, receives his $200 agricultural scholarship check from Hildreth A. Canell, assistant vice president of the Watertown National bank. Bates is the first Jefferson county high school graduate to receive the scholarship award, to be given annually by the Watertown National bank to a student who wants to study agriculture at Canton Agricultural and Technical institute.

National Bank will select another student from one of the county high schools who wants to study agriculture at the New York state school in Canton to receive a scholarship.

"After this year, the bank will be awarding two scholarship funds annually," said Mr. Canell. "We will see that a student who starts his course will get money to complete his second year at Canton A. T. I. at the same time we select a student to enter the school. It is not the bank's intention to get a boy started in school and then drop him."

Mr. Canell said that Bates has been accepted at Canton Agricultural and Technical institute. A letter was received by Mr. Canell from Glenn E. Wright, director of student personnel at Canton A. T. I., saying that Bates has been enrolled.

Students from schools in Jefferson county, who want to make application for the scholarship, can do so through their school principal, it was explained by Mr. Canell. The recipients will be selected by the Watertown National bank and the school principal. Selection is based on scholastic attainment, extra-curricular activities, general conduct and interest in agriculture.

Bates was active in baseball, basketball, tennis and volleyball at the Dexter school. He was co-captain of the basketball team in his senior year. He also served as treasurer of his freshman class and was active in school dramatics.

Boy Is Shot to Death By Playmate, Aged 9

Accidentally Inflicted Wound Causes Death of George Lloyd, 13, Near Sackets Har- bor.

George Lloyd, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lloyd, Sackets Harbor-Baggs Corners county road, was killed Sunday afternoon by a shotgun charge in the stomach accidentally inflicted by a nine-year-old neighbor and playmate, Elwin Anderson.

The Lloyd youth died from loss of blood as young Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Anderson, raced from the pasture where the tragedy occurred to the Lloyd home to arouse the victim's father.

The boys had spent most of Sunday playing in the pasture. The shooting took place a short time after the Lloyd boy had loaded the single-shot weapon when he thought a bird he saw was a pheasant. When it turned out to be a gull, he handed the gun to Anderson and they started walking across the pasture.

Apparently unaware that the shotgun was loaded, Anderson, in a playful mood, pointed the gun toward Lloyd and pulled the trigger, authorities said.

According to the young boy's story to investigators at the sheriff's office Sunday night, Elwin, not realizing the shell was still in the chamber, suddenly pulled back the hammer to cock the gun and then pointed it in Lloyd's direction. He said he pulled the trigger and the gun went off. Lloyd was about 15 feet away when the shot tore into his left side, just below the ribs.

"Oh," the victim exclaimed, holding his stomach. "Get my father. Get my father."

Then Lloyd fell to the ground. "Get some help," he instructed the frightened youngster.

Anderson told investigators that he fled, "as fast as I could run," to the Lloyd home. In his excitement he held onto the heavy gun and carried it along with him.

Anderson told Lloyd's father of the shooting and the elder Lloyd ran to the scene and then to the county road where he stopped a car occupied by Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Stevenson, 172 Flower avenue east.

The Stevensons took Lloyd to the George Boulton residence near Sackets Harbor where Stevenson called the sheriff's office.

Sheriff Brayton E. Peck went to the scene of the fatality and Dr. J. B. Bickel, Sackets Harbor, was called. When the doctor arrived, Lloyd was dead. Later in the afternoon the body was brought to the Cummings funeral home in this city where Dr. F. W. Porro, pathologist, performed an autopsy. District Attorney Milton A.

Wiltse, who took part in the investigation, said today that Dr. Porro said that the shooting victim had bled to death. The district attorney said that a verdict in the shooting will be rendered following an inquest, scheduled to be started this afternoon.

The sheriff said he received a call from Mr. Stevenson at 4:20 p. m. Mr. Stevenson told the sheriff that Lloyd had stopped his car on the road and told him, "my boy has just been shot up in the pasture and I want to get to a telephone to call the sheriff's office."

There were no eye witnesses to the tragedy other than the nine-year-old boy who pulled the trigger.

Sheriff Peck said the youngster told the following story at the sheriff's office Sunday night where he went with his father to talk with the sheriff and district attorney:

George Lloyd, Elwin Anderson and Anderson's brother, Steven, 14, had gone out into the pasture along a creek on the Lloyd farm where they were building a shack. They worked on the shack until lunch time when they went home. After lunch Lloyd and young Anderson went back to the shack but Steven stayed at home.

Lloyd brought the old-fashioned shotgun with him in the afternoon. After he and young Anderson worked on the shack for a time they decided to go further up the pasture where they both sat on a stone wall at the edge of the pasture.

After Lloyd spotted the bird he first believed to be a pheasant, he slipped a shell into the chamber of the single-shot gun only to discover then that the bird was a gull.

After a few moments, the boys decided to return to the shack and Lloyd handed the gun to his young companion to carry. They had walked about 150 feet before Anderson stopped and playfully pointed the weapon at his companion, pulling the trigger.

Just before the boys sat on the stone fence, they had gone into the apple orchard in the pasture to get apples. They found the apples bitter and decided to build a fire and roast them. Lloyd built the fire but the boys decided the apples were no tastier roasted than raw and they put the fire out.

Sheriff Peck said that the shooting victim's father was alone in the farmhouse when the fatality occurred. Mrs. Lloyd was with a daughter, Mrs. Carl Lundberg, 299 Colburn street, East Dedham, Mass., at the time. She went there a week ago when her daughter was taken seriously ill and entered a hospital.

Young Anderson's father is welfare officer of the town of Hounsfield and is a former justice of the peace of the town. The Lloyds have resided in this section about two years.

George Lloyd was born in Syracuse on March 2, 1933, a son of Harry and Mae Redden Lloyd. His mother was formerly of Kingston, N. Y. He is survived by his parents, his sister in East Dedham, Mass., and two brothers, William and Jack Lloyd, who are at home, having just been released from service. He also leaves an aunt, Mrs. George H. Gregory, 753 Davidson street.

The body was brought to the Cummings Funeral home in Watertown and will be taken at 10 a. m. Tuesday to the family residence, where funeral services will be Wednesday at 2 p. m., Rev. Dr. William C. Cain, pastor of the Sackets Harbor United church, officiating. Burial will be in the North Watertown cemetery.

XAVIER CHEVALIER HOUSE NEAR MILLEN'S BAY

On a quiet country road off the beaten path near Millen's bay is this almost century-old native limestone farmhouse of Xavier Chevalier, a name which in later years was changed in county history and in records of the county clerk's office to Swallia and Swalia.

The Chevalier family was of French origin, but came to Jefferson county from the Province of Quebec. Peter Chevalier, born in the latter province, married Catharine Marcott there, removed to the town of Cape Vincent and died there at the age of 40. Their children were Peter, Mary, Frances, Josephine, Eliza, Zoe and Xavier, all probably born in Canada.

At least history records that Xaxier was, that he located on old road 18 in the town of Cape Vincent and married Sarah, daughter of Nicholas and Elizabeth Cornaire. By occupation they were thrifty Cape Vincent farmers. It is said that they built this house about 1854, but it is likely that they erected it two years earlier than that.

The farm, upon which it stands, consists of 108.25 acres composed of two parcels. The first of these was bought by Xavier Chevalier on Jan. 27, 1852, from Vincent Le Ray through the latter's attorney, Patrick Somerville Stewart, for $395.70, and it is probable the stone house was constructed shortly thereafter. The second parcel of 50.86 acres was bought by Mr. Chevalier for $141.12 from James Le Ray de Chaumont, Marquis de St. Paul, through Patrick Somerville Stewart on Feb. 22, 1860. The two parcels adjoin each other and this farm, maintained in trim and excellent condition in its pleasant setting, is now owned by Malcolm E. Bates, sr., and wife, Mrs. Edna Bates.

Xavier Chevalier, whose will bears the name Swalia indicating that he must have changed it to that, died in the town of Cape Vincent Nov. 22, 1900, leaving his widow Sarah the life-use of his 50-acre Malar farm and providing that his children should share equally eventually in all of his real and personal property. His property was valued at $9,600 and his children were: John, Rosiere; Joseph, Chetek, Wis.; Harriet Aubertine, Rosiere; Clarissa Doyle, Marysville, Ont.; Julia M. Kitts, Riverview; Mary Kimmes, Rosiere, and Carrie Mason, Rosiere.

On Oct. 8, 1901, these children and their spouses sold this farm for $5,412 to Adelbert B. Kitts, town of Cape Vincent, husband of Julia, and the property became known as the Kitts farm.

Julia Margaret Chevalier was born in the township June 5, 1854. In January, 1874, she was married to Augustus Charles. To them was born one daughter, Sophia, who became the wife of Marcel S. Branche. Mr. Charles died in 1884 and on Feb. 14, 1888, his widow was married to Adelbert B. Kitts. No children were born to them. Mr. Kitts died April 6, 1919, and his wife on May 6, 1935.

This farm and stone house then went to her only child, Mrs. Sophia E. Branche who, on March 24, 1936, sold it to Mr. and Mrs. Bates, Mrs. Branche's husband, Marcel S. Branche, having quitclaimed his interest in the property to her on that same day.

Mrs. Branche, the former Sophia Charles, was married to Marcel S. Branche at Rosiere Sept. 5, 1899, and two years ago they celebrated their golden wedding. One of their five children, Lewis V. Branche, has recently served as supervisor of the town of Cape Vincent.

Malcolm E. Bates, present owner of this property, is the son of Martin Bates and graduate of the Cape Vincent High school. On December 25, 1923, he was married to Miss Edna Babcock, daughter of Mrs. G. W. Babcock, at Glen Park. She is a graduate of the Brownville-Glen Park High school and the Northern Business school of this city. Prior to her marriage she was employed in the office of the Shaughnessy Knitting company. They have a son, Malcolm E. Bates, jr.

—This May Sound Hardboiled, but ...

By Jean Conder Soule

Good thing that Easter Rabbit
Hopped down the bunny trail
Or I'd be sorely tempted
To pinch his fluffy tail.

If I ever caught that fellow,
I'd pull his hoppy legs;

This year that rascal left us
Six dozen hard-boiled eggs.

To use those eggs at mealtime
Every day is aggravating—
Which is why I call that rabbit
Downright eggs-asperating!

ed to Make Search

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION MEMBER HAS NERVOUS TROUBLE

More Than 300 Soldiers Join in Search—Missing from Summer Colony Since
Thursday — River Being Dragged.

(Special To The Times)

Kingston, Ont., Sept. 1. —
Ontario provincial and Kingston city police were requested today to seek the whereabouts of Howard B. Donaldson, 49, of 173 TenEyck street, Watertown, N. Y., who they said had been missing from a summer colony near here since Thursday morning.

More than 300 soldiers were said to have joined in the search for the Watertown man, who is a member of the Public Service commission of New York state and a prominent lawyer of Watertown. He formerly served as county judge of Jefferson county, of which Watertown is the seat.

Police were informed that Donaldson was last seen Thursday about 10 a. m. at Mill Haven, a summer colony about ten miles west of here, where he and his family arrived Wednesday. According to police, Donaldson was suffering from loss of memory and had been advised by physicians to take a rest.

Authorities said that they had been given a description of the missing man, and it was broadcast over the local radio station,
CKWS, this morning.

The broadcast said that Donaldson was wearing brown trousers, a white shirt or undershirt, brown moccasins, and blue socks with red stripes. It added that he carried a small amount of money about his person and that he wore a strap watch, a gold wedding band and signet ring.

Police spent Friday dragging the Little River, which empties into Lake Ontario at Mill Haven, to which Donaldson reportedly
a sanatorium in Canada.

The searchers also went through the bush, which surrounds the colony at Mill Haven. The place where the Donaldsons were staying is known as New Haven.

Two brothers of Donaldson, G.
Wesley Donaldson, Watertown, and Floyd Donaldson, Carthage,

working with police.

Donaldson, according to information received here, has been in ailing health since spring, shortly after he was appointed to the 15,000-a-year position as New York state Public Service commissioner.

Early in July, it was said, he was confined to his Watertown home by illness, spending two weeks there, before he was said to have entered a sanatorium.
Three weeks later, he returned home and he and his wife, Mrs.
Violet Harron Donaldson, and their two children went to their summer home, Eve's Eden, on the St. Lawrence river between Clayton and Cape Vincent.

At various times during the summer, he returned to the sanatorium for rest.

Mr. Donaldson, native of the village of St. Lawrence located between Clayton and Cape Vincent, was district attorney of Jefferson county two terms, had served one term as county judge and on March 14 of this year his appointment by Governor Dewey
as a member of the state public service commission was confirmed by the state senate. On March 27 he resigned as county judge effective the following day and at the beginning of April he assumed his duties as public service commissioner.

Mr. Fish reported to his superior, Bishop DeLancy church leader of western New York that he had made eight trips to this village during the year to conduct religious services.

Saturday night's program will bring together members of four denominations — the Episcopal, Roman Catholic, Presbyterian, and Methodist churches—in a non-religious celebration of the event. The program will have a religious tone in a short ceremony within the church in which 100 representative Episcopalians will march into the church, sing a hymn and leave with a Recessional hymn.

The 100 will then go to the lawn of the church and join other Cape Vincent residents in a speaking program which will include a short congratulatory speeches by clergymen from the other three churches here, Right Rev. Edward Huntington Coley, D. D., bishop of the diocese of central New York, Mrs. G. S. Knowlton, Watertown, County Judge Howard B. Donaldson, and Rev. George E. Nichols, rector who will introduce the speakers. Mrs. Knowlton is a descendant of O. P. Starkey who gave land upon which the church was built.

The three clergymen who will carry congratulations from their churches to Episcopalians will be Rev. Thomas E. Owen, pastor of St. Vincent's Roman Catholic church; Rev. Hiram D. Bacon, Presbyterian church pastor; and Rev. James N. Pauley, pastor of the Methodist church. A short speech will also be given by Mayor John R. Kilborn.

After the speaking program refreshments will be served and a square dance will be held on the parish house immediately adjoining the church. Grange's orchestra will play.

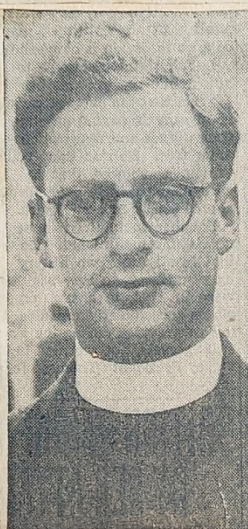

Sunday's service will be entirely religious in character and will follow the usual Sunday program. Bishop Coley will celebrate Holy Communion in a service of thanksgiving and Rev. Mr. Nichols will speak on the history of the church.

A large number of former rectors and parishoners of the church are to return here for the two-day ceremonies. Church officials in making plans for the centennial observance have issued invitations to the public to attend and expect that there will be a large attendance of Watertown people, former members of the church.

Through the 100 years leading to this year's centennial celebration St. John's has had a colorful and historic life. Some of its history is recorded on tombstones in the old cemetery behind the church in which only occasional burials are now made. The cemetery was started with the church and the first person to be laid at rest was Jonathan Howland who died on Oct. 12, 1841, at the age of 60 years, two months, and 28 days.

Howland's tombstone has deteriorated, as have many of those in the old burying lot, but a more impressive memorial was put up some time around 1910 by a descendant, Sir William Pearce Howland, of Toronto, then 95 years old. At the present time, only those families who have cemetery plot grants from the first years of the church bury their members there.

Organized Episcopal activity in Cape Vincent began in early 1841 after Rev. Mr. Fish had reported to his bishop the need of a church here. With Rev. John Noble at their head, a group of churchmen legally organized themselves into a church and began to hold regular services in a stone schoolhouse where now stands the Mulford house.

First wardens in this old church society were John B. Esselstyn, Nelson B. Williams, the first vestrymen were Nelson Potter, O. P. Starkey, R. Bartlett, C. H. Pool, J. T. Ainsworth, Robert Moore, Rich Parish, and W. Esselstyn.

In April of 1841 there came to direct the church as rector, Rev. N. Watkins. Since there was no church building the congregation was summoned to appoint a building committee which had in its membership the Messrs. Starkey, Pool, Ainsworth and Williams.

Delegated to the committee was power to act "in giving out the contract for the building of a church in such a manner as they consider best for the interests of the parish." Problems in finance arose immediately. The bishop advised an appeal to citizens of New York state and the church fathers followed his advice, sending Mr. Adams out to canvass.

In the Diocesan Journal of 1841 is found a report from Mr. Adams reading, "Moreover, we have no place to hold divine service but a small, inconvenient schoolhouse and that only half the time, therefore, our friends here are making great exertions to erect a church edifice for themselves which will be, by the blessing of God, by the last of September next. The parish has contributed to this object the present year nearly $1,700, yet we cannot complete it without appealing to the liberality of churchmen abroad."

In the parish there were only 15 families, 50 adults and 30 children. Despite the paucity of resources to draw upon, the committee went ahead with construction plans. By June of 1844 the building was paid for and was consecrated by the bishop of the diocese and dedicated to St. John the Apostle. Six years later, with a gift of $800 from Mr. Leray De Chaumont, the parish built a rectory.

Of the total cost of the church building, $2,972.65, the parish gave $1,700 and the remainder was raised by subscription outside the village. Mr. Starkey gave $500 and Henry Ainsworth contributed $300. Watertown people sent $340 to the church.

Through the years, from the financial troubles of the church's early days to its more secure existence of recent years, many rectors have served in the post now held by the young and energetic Rev. Mr. Nichols. The church has steadily developed and carved a place for itself in community life.

A chancel was built at the rear, enlarging the church, the only other addition besides the parish house. The original pew arrangement, in which seats were installed along the side walls parallel to the aisles with a center pew section having no center aisle, has been replaced by the conventional two-section pew construction.

Interesting data are scattered through the old books of the church, written in exquisite script in the early days but falling off into a faster, less painstaking handwriting in more recent years, when the art of writing has declined.

With the 15 families of the first year, there were four adult baptisms, 19 communicants, one burial, 38 services, 32 Sunday school "scholars," and eight teachers.

According to figures compiled by Rev. Mr. Nichols, the 100 years of Episcopal history here had 1,327 baptisms and 1,122 confirmations. At the present time, there are 283 baptized and 212 confirmed.

Entirely divorced from the centennial observance, save for those who have been associated with the church for many years, but standing as a tribute to the work of Rev. Mr. Nichols is the projected rehabilitation of the old cemetery in which burials were commonly made from 1841 to 1875 before Riverside cemetery was established here.

Lots in the cemetery were apportioned to members of the church and only families still having lots there bury their dead behind the old white church. With only two or three burials there in the four years the present rector has been in Cape Vincent, the cemetery deteriorated. There was never any paid caretaker and only the Starkey plot, the General Sacket grave, and one or two others were kept up.

All around the burying grounds grew up silver poplar brush, over riding the tombstones and obliterating many of the old records. Many of the stones were broken by the force of time and others surrendered their writing to the winds and rains that beat into the cemetery over the years.

This year Rev. Mr. Nichols went before his congregation with a proposal. Given three months and $800, he said, he and a hired man could restore the cemetery to a semblance of order. He was wrong in his time element—it was a harder job than he had judged. The work will not be done until late October at least. But his money estimate might be a bit high; the job may take less than $800.

At any rate, cheaper or not, parishioners of St. John's can find well over $800 worth of work in their old cemetery whenever they care to step behind their church. In one corner, the cemetery has not been touched as yet and it stands just as did the whole lot a few months back. There is difficulty in seeing the grave markers and the rough broken ground is unattractive.

Over the rest of the cemetery, however, there is an order and calmness that is not often seen in even well cared for lots. The ground has been smoothed over, grave stones have been repaired and set in new concrete foundations and in straight lines. New grass has been sown over the area thus far completed.

Broken and replaced foundations and brush matter are placed at the rear of the cemetery and carried off by village workers who are happy to see the order restored to the historic spot.

In the cemetery, the work has been done by two men—the rector, who works about four hours a day as well as caring for his church, and a man whose name the rector declined to divulge "because he would be embarrassed to death."

Besides the old French names plentifully sprinkled among the tombstones are those of Howland and of Inspector General Delos B. Sacket who was born here on April 14 and went on to a prominent place in the United States army in the Civil war. He died in Washington on March 8, 1895, and his body was returned here for burial. His grave stands only a few blocks from his old home where his descendants still live.

In another spot there is the name of a man named Hasler, a European-born who conducted the first geodetic survey in this country and then surveyed the Canadian border from here to Maine. Up in Maine he ran into trouble when he mislaid two United States forts and marked them inside the Canadian line.

MRS. GEORGE G. ROBBINS, 71, DIES

Stricken Ill While Watching Television—Funeral On Saturday.

Mrs. Clara M. Robbins, 71, wife of George G. Robbins, Massey street road, died suddenly of a coronary thrombosis at 11:10 Wednesday night, apparently as she arrived at the Mercy hospital by ambulance from the family home.

The funeral will be Saturday afternoon at 2 at the Cleveland Funeral home. Rev. Thomas J. Carlisle, pastor of the Stone Street Presbyterian church, will officiate. Burial will be probably at Cape Vincent.

Surviving her, besides her husband, are a daughter, Mrs. Frederick E. (Evelyn Hicks) Bellinger, 673 LeRay street, born of her first marriage; two step-children, Harold R. Robbins, Sackets Harbor-Smithville road, and Mrs. Martin (Pewilla Robbins) Haneck, Massey street road; four grandchildren; a great-grandson; a sister, Mrs. Robert J. (Mildred A.) Parry, 314 Van Duzee street; a brother, W. Fred Dextator, Glen Park, and cousins, nephews and nieces.

Mrs. Robbins, stricken ill at her home about 10 Wednesday night while watching television, was hurried by ambulance to the hospital after a physician and the ambulance were called, but she was pronounced dead after she arrived at the hospital and was placed in bed.

While she had been afflicted with a heart condition and high blood pressure and had suffered attacks from time to time, she appeared to be in her usual health Wednesday and was up and around as usual.

She was born in Milltown, Ont., near Belleville, March 1, 1886, a daughter of the late John and Ida Reid Dextator. She was married, first, to Leonard Hicks of Canada in Canada. Two children were born of the marriage, William, who died in infancy, and Evelyn, now Mrs. Bellinger. The marriage later ended in a divorce.

She and her first husband came to this country when she was a young woman and they lived in Brownville and Watertown. After the couple was divorced, she moved to Glen Park to live with her parents.

She was married to LeRoy Martin of this city, but he died not long after the marriage. On June 14, 1922 she was married to George G. Robbins, then of Cape Vincent, and about two months later they moved to the Massey street road, where they since resided. He is a farmer.

Mrs. Robbins was a member of the Sulphur Springs grange.

with the Massia family, were able to dress and get out of the house safely. They are not related to Mr. Horton, owner of the Horton store.

Mr. Horton, who is Cape Vincent village clerk, was able, with the help of village firemen, to save all the village records from the store. Mr. Busack was also able to save a few small items from his office, although he had to be helped from the building by firemen when he was almost overcome by smoke. Everything else in both buildings was burned. Mr. Horton estimated his loss at about $6,000 which, he said, is covered by insurance. Insurance will partially cover losses in both buildings. The Massia family and Misses Grace and Nellie Horton estimated their losses, which comprise household furniture and clothing, at about $5,000.

More than 200 men worked through the early morning hours in 20 degree temperatures to bring one of the most disastrous fires in Cape Vincent's history under control. With the destruction of the telephone office, local service was entirely eliminated today, and the temporary line to Watertown was reserved only for emergencies. The local Western Union office, located in the Horton store, was also destroyed, although telegraph service was available at the local railroad station.

Mrs. Isabelle J. Lawyer

MRS. ISABELLE J. LAWYER'S FUNERAL WILL BE TUESDAY

The funeral of Mrs. Isabelle J. Lawyer, 76, of North Miami, Fla., and Cedar Point, N. Y., formerly of Watertown, who died Friday morning in St. Francis hospital of Miami, will be Tuesday morning at 8:30 from the Cummings funeral home and at 9 in Holy Family church. Burial will be in North Watertown cemetery.

The bearers will be: Chester A. Stieve, Cortland A. Donaldson, William S. Gould, Irwin Crast and Maro M. Otis, city, and Adam J. Vogt, Brownville.

The fire, which apparently began in the first floor kitchen of the Broadway hotel, owned by John Busack, was discovered by Mrs. Rose Stilson, telephone operator on duty on the 10 p. m. to 8 a. m. shift. Mrs. Stilson sounded the Cape Vincent fire alarm, which is controlled from the telephone office, and called Sheriff Brayton E. Peck in Watertown for aid before she was driven from the building by the smoke and flames.

Sheriff Peck called neighboring fire departments, under the county's mutual fire protection program. Following his call to Clayton, the Clayton night telephone operator, Rena Farney, attempted to call Cape Vincent but got no response.

She then notified the telephone wife chief at Clayton, J. E. Getman, who went to Cape Vincent and succeeded in installing an emergency telephone circuit to Watertown, completing the job by 6 a. m. In the meantime, Jimmy Leach, wire chief for the Cape Vincent Telephone company, had established communication with Chaumont by tapping the line on a telephone pole, and had called for additional help to fight the fire.

There was plenty of water, from the Cape Vincent hydrants and from the St. Lawrence river, and firemen were able to save the residence of Fred Perkins, near the Broadway hotel, which became heated to the point of bursting into flames.

The George Farmer home on the other side of Broadway was also threatened, but a thorough soaking of the front of the house kept the flames from doing any damage there. A two foot thick brick fire wall between the Horton store and the Red and White grocery store, owned by Russell Fitzgerald, protected the grocery store and its stock from catching fire, although there was slight smoke and water damage there. The Hollenbeck dry goods store and the Cape Vincent bank, adjoining the Fitzgerald grocery, escaped damage.

The Broadway hotel, in whose kitchen the fire apparently started, was a two-story frame structure purchased less than a year ago by John Busack. It had undergone extensive remodeling in recent months, and its loss was estimated in excess of $50,000. There were no residents at the hotel. Mr. Busack's residence is on James street in Cape Vincent.

The other structure burned was known as the Grapotte block, and was owned by Mrs. James Ross of Cape Vincent. It contained the Strand theater, with the Cape Vincent telephone exchange on the second floor, over the theater, and the Horton store, owned by Fenton Roy Horton, with the apartment occupied by the Massia family over the store. The third floor of the Grapotte block was used for storage.

Mrs. Massia was awakened at about 5 this morning by the smell of smoke and immediately called her husband. She then dressed quickly and took the baby wrapped in blankets, to safety. Mr. Massia suffered an heart attack in the smoke-filled house, and was stricken again on the stairs and had to be given assistance. Miss Grace Horton and Miss Nellie Horton, telephone operators at the Cape Vincent exchange, who lived

Cape Vincent Phones Are Being Repaired

Outgoing calls from Cape Vincent could be placed at the switchboard in the Mason store, and it was possible to have messengers bring recipients of incoming calls to the switchboard to receive their calls. The switchboard was available at Manlius because that community completed installation of the dial system 15 days ago, and the manual board was no longer in use.

The steel safe from the telephone office was recovered from the ruins this morning, but could not be opened because the combination had been lost. It was likely that the safe would be opened forcibly to recover the company's records inside. The total loss at the telephone office was estimated at $15,000.

Telephone operators on duty Monday and today were Mrs. Frank Millen, a substitute operator; Mrs. Bessie Eddy, night operator; Mrs. Forrest Brown, and Mrs. Rose Stilson, who turned in the fire alarm Monday morning. Mrs. Grace Horton, chief operator of the exchange, who lived at the burned apartment in the Grapotte block, had not yet returned to duty. Mrs. Horton lost her glasses in the fire.

(Special to the Times)

Cape Vincent, Feb. 2. — Two business structures, one comprising the two-story Broadway hotel and the other containing the Strand theater, the Cape Vincent Telephone company office, Horton's drug store, and a seven-room apartment, were levelled by a fire of undetermined origin which broke out shortly before 5 this morning. One family of five was left homeless, and the total loss will probably exceed $100,000.

Firemen from Cape Vincent, Clayton, Chaumont, Brownville, Depauville, and Dexter succeeded in bringing the blaze under control by 7 this morning, but not before the two business blocks and virtually all their contents were completely destroyed.

Flames, fanned by a moderately high wind, shot some 200 feet into the air and could be seen over 20 miles away; and during the height of the fire an explosion in the Broadway hotel literally blew the building apart, thrusting the entire front of the structure up against two large rees bordering the Broadway sidewalk.

No one was injured during the fire, but Henry J. Massia, who with his family occupied the seven room apartment over the Horton store, suffered two slight heart attacks while leaving the burning building and had to be helped to safety by Fred Barr, Jimmy Leach and William Wiley, Cape Vincent firemen. Also living in the apartment were Mrs. Marion Massia, wife of Henry Massia, their four months old son, Lance, Miss Grace Horton and Miss Nellie Horton.

Complete Restoration of Service by Tonight — Water Still Played on Fire Site.

(Special to The Times.)

Cape Vincent, Feb. 3.—Telephone service in this village, destroyed by Monday morning's disastrous fire in the Broadway business district, will be completely restored tonight, about 50 hours after the sudden interruption Monday. Partial service is already available, and a crew of 20 has been at work constantly since Monday morning to re-establish communication within the village and with the outside world.

Four members of the Cape Vincent fire department stood by Monday night to watch the smoldering ruins of the Broadway hotel and the Grapotte block; and streams of water have been poured into the burned out area all day today, to remove the last threat of a new outbreak. Small, stubborn flames persisted beneath the debris, out of reach of firemen, last night and today; but there has been no new threat to surrounding buildings.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Massia, their four months old son, Lance, Mrs. Grace Horton, and Miss Nellie Horton, whose home and personal possessions were lost when the fire destroyed their seven room apartment over the Horton drug store, are staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Leach. The American Legion post and Legion auxiliary have begun a campaign to provide clothing and other necessities for the family. Mr. Massia is a member of the local Legion post.

Within an hour after telephone service was halted Monday morning a temporary emergency connection was in operation at the Mason electric store, across the street from the former telephone office; and workmen had begun repairs to the damaged system. At 7 p. m. Monday a two position switchboard from the Manlius telephone office had arrived in Cape Vincent by truck, together with 700 feet of 200-pair cable. At 8 this morning, after working all night without interruption, the 20-man crew from Cape Vincent and the New York Telephone company office in Watertown, had installed and put into operation the eight toll lines leading from this village. Four lines to Watertown, two to Kingston, Ont., one to Three Mile Bay, and one to Clayton were operating by then.

Local lines were reconnected to the switchboard at the Mason electric store this morning, and by noon 50 lines were installed, although they had not yet been tested and their use was restricted to emergency calls. There are 200 local lines and 495 separate telephones in the Cape Vincent exchange, in addition to the eight toll circuits.

Pastor Pays Tribute To Mrs. J.A. Common

The eulogy delivered at the funeral service for Mrs. James A. Common in the First Presbyterian church Tuesday afternoon by Rev. David R. Watermiller, pastor, is herewith presented.

Long ago Alfred Tennyson plucked a flower from the crannied wall, held it in his hand, and wrote:

"Little flower—but if I could understand
What you are—root and all, and all in all,
I should know what God and
man is."

Perhaps that best describes our days on this earth. We try to understand who we are, what we are, and Who gives us breath.

Mrs. Common was one of those rare individuals who, holding the flowers of life in her hand, gained a flash of understanding not granted to many mortals. In one respect her life was ordinary: she lived her allotted span, she reared a family, she saw what others saw, did what others did.

But this was no ordinary life. Here was that elusive something we call quality of soul, which somehow transformed ordinary pursuits into praiseworthy accomplishments. She took the flower in her hand, root and all. She became the best known writer and illustrator of nature subjects in the North Country. "The Lord is my shepherd. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; he leadeth me beside the still waters," said the psalmist. As Mrs. Common drank in the beauties of her Father's world, she explored their wonder. Nature lovers everywhere turned to her for the final word on birds and trees, flowers and animals.

"This is my Father's world, and to my listening ears,
All nature sings, and round me rings the music of the spheres.

This is my Father's world, the birds their carols raise,
The morning light, the lily white, declare their Maker's praise.

This is my Father's world: He shines in all that's fair;
In the rustling grass I hear Him pass, He speaks to me, everywhere."

"Behold the fowls of the air," said Jesus. "They sow not, neither do they reap, yet your heavenly Father feedeth them."

Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin. . . If God so clothe the grass of the field, which today is, and tomorrow is cast into the oven, shall He not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?"

Lloyd Gosier, 67, Cape Vincent, R. D., was admitted to the Mercy hospital Tuesday at 2:30 p.m., with a fracture of the left leg received when he fell from a tractor near his farm home. Mr. Gosier was brought to the hospital by ambulance. Hospital officials described his condition as favorable.

New York Department. He spent the morning in Surely Mrs. Common, a leader of this church and devoted Sunday school teacher at Faith Chapel, knew the meaning of that kind of faith. She who never knew her real mother, became the mother of six. She who knew how God clothed the grass of the field, saw all six children overcome obstacles and graduate from colleges. She who breathed deeply the beauty of earth and sky and sea, became an artist in her own right. It was her Father's world. She lived in His garden.

It is a thrilling story! In this day when the cry is "What can I give!" her song was "What can I give!" In a time when lives grow soft worrying for material security, she capitalized on her spiritual investments and brought in a return of an hundred fold. Her family, her selfless interest in schools and libraries, birds and flowers, chapels and churches, stand as an eternal proof of our faith. Here is the Christian experience which refutes all arguments. Here is a life, planted in the soil of the Christian faith, rooted in the Eternal. By her fruits is she known.

"Who can find a virtuous woman?" asks the Scriptures. "For her price is far above rubies." Indeed it is, for she has passed our way, and we have beheld her.

"Strength and honour are her clothing; and she shall rejoice in time to come. She openeth her mouth with wisdom; and in her tongue is the law of kindness. She looketh well to the ways of her household, and eateth not the bread of idleness. Her children arise up, and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praiseth her. Favour is deceitful, and beauty is vain: but a woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised."

(Proverbs 31:10-30)

We would not wish her back. We are better because she came our way. She abides now in the Eternal Garden, where flows the fountain of life. "Abide in me, and I in you," says her Master. How He loved nature, too! "As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine, no more can ye, except ye abide in Me."

O blest communion, fellowship divine!
We feebly struggle, they in glory shine;
Yet all are one in Thee, for all are Thine.
Alleluia!

Woman Hurt in Fall
Mrs. Albert F. Kelley of Brownville suffered a possible fracture of the left leg or hip late this morning when she fell on the sidewalk near a shoe store on the north side of Public Square. She was removed to Guilfoyle's ambulance to the Mercy hospital, where X-ray pictures were taken.

Boy Killed, Six Hurt When Car Leaves Highway

David A. Webster, 15, Occupant of Automobile Driven by Syracuse Resident, 17.

A 15-year-old Cape Vincent boy was fatally injured and six youthful companions ranging in age from 12 to 18 were injured when a high-powered sedan went out of control on the Cape Vincent-Watertown state highway, two miles east of Cape Vincent, at 9:45 Tuesday night and was demolished.

David Webster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Webster, died of a fractured skull and other injuries in the Mercy hospital at 6:45 this morning.

The car, driven by Joseph Mezzatesta, jr., 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mezzatesta, summer residents of Cape Vincent whose home is in Syracuse, left the pavement, and traveled along the shoulder of the highway 1,000 feet, snapping off one telephone pole and coming to rest against another after overturning three or four times.

The careening vehicle carried one of the poles 125 feet and all of its occupants were thrown clear of the wreckage with Webster being found 100 feet ahead of the smashed vehicle.

Five of the six survivors of the accident are in the Mercy hospital. They are:

Mezzatesta, who suffered rib injuries.

Richard Booth, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Booth, Cape Vincent, who has back injuries.

Philip Wiley, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Mason, Cape Vincent, who has a left forearm laceration and cuts about the right eye.

Walter Staub, jr., 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Staub, Short Hills, N. J., and summer residents of Cape Vincent, who suffered skull lacerations.

Robert Staub, 12, his brother, who has back injuries.

Dr. Howard W. Cooper attended the five in the Mercy hospital. Brought to the House of the Good Samaritan was:

Michael Hincley, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Hincley, Cape Vincent, who has a fractured right ankle.

Officials reported that the accident apparently occurred when the driver, turning to say some thing to one of his companions in the back seat, lost control of the car when the right wheels slipped off the pavement onto the road shoulder.

Deputy Sheriff Arthur L. Sprague, who investigated for the sheriff's office, said that District Attorney Milton A. Wiltse was notified and is expected to hold an inquest.

He said there were no witnesses to the accident other than the occupants of the car.

Sprague said that the accident tore the doors from the 1950 Oldsmobile "98" sedan, crushed its body and doubled up the frame by the time it came to rest against the telephone pole.

He said all of the boys in the car were thrown free of the wreck. All were found lying on the pavement and ground by passing motorists a few minutes after the accident, with the exception of Mezzatesta who was walking around in a dazed condition.

The seven boys were headed for Three Mile Bay when the accident occurred. Assisting in the investigation were: Constable Clarence Gordon, Brownville; Deputy Sheriff Charles Aubrey, Cape Vincent, and Troopers John Spear and Kelly of the Alexandria Bay patrol.

Deputy Sheriff Sprague said the accident occurred on a straight stretch of road which has only a slight down grade.

The boy was born April 29, 1936, at Theresa, a son of Gordon and Blanche Timmerman Webster. He was a junior at Cape Vincent Central school, a member of the school band, the school organization of the Future Farmers of America, the Boy Scouts of America and St. Vincent de Paul church.

Surviving are his mother and father, a sister, Mary; his paternal grandfather, Adelbert Webster, Cape Vincent; a maternal grandmother, Mrs. Grace Timmerman, Dexter, several aunts and uncles.

Man Is Killed When Coupe Plunges Off Bridge Into Creek

Milton A. Brenon,
Cape Vincent, R. D.
1, Drowned — Curtis Davis, 35, Badly Hurt.

One person lost his life and another was injured when a 1947 sedan coupe in which they were riding left the Clayton-Cape Vincent highway, straddled the headwall of a span near Millen's Bay and then toppled 20 feet down an embankment, plunging into two feet of water at 8:15 Friday night.

The dead man is Milton A. Brenon, 45, of Cape Vincent, R. D. 1, who lost his life by drowning and not from injuries sustained in the accident.

In the Mercy hospital is Curtis Davis, 35, Three Mile Bay, R. D. 1, who suffered a fracture of the right leg, shock, bruises and contusions. His condition is not regarded as serious.

Sheriff Brayton E. Peck said that Brenon was drowned when the car landed on its right side in the water, submerging Brenon's head which was partially out of the window of the wrecked vehicle. Brenon's head was buried in the muddy bottom of the water which is a backflow of Millen's Bay.

The accident occurred when Brenon and Davis were traveling north from Cape Vincent toward Clayton. Brenon, owner of the coupe, was the driver, according to Sheriff Peck who investigated with Deputy Sheriff Charles Aubrey and Thomas Grimshaw, chief of police of Cape Vincent.

The scene of the accident is just south of the Millen's Bay Inn. There is a steep downgrade at the approach of the culvert-type span.

Sheriff Peck said that the Brenon car left the road on the east side, continued for 63 feet along the shoulder of the highway and then struck the railing and headwall of the span. The momentum of the car caused the vehicle to straddle the headwall of the span, and continue for 30 feet. The car then dropped from the span, toppled end-over-end down a 20 foot embankment and plunged into the flow of water, two feet deep at the point.

The car landed on its right, or driver's side in the water. The impact of the crash had tossed Davis into the back of the sedan coupe and hurled Brenon from the driver's seat to the right side. The windows in the car were shattered.

Harold Glass, Denner Dodge and Ralph Beano, all of Millen's Bay, reached the scene a few

MAN, 42, KILLED AS CAR HITS HIM

Meets Instant Death as He Walks on Dexter-Baggs Corners Highway

CLIFFORD J. STERLING, FISHERMAN, IS VICTIM

Automobile Driven by Claude O. Phelan, 68, Former Village Clerk of Dexter—Blinded by Headlights.

Clifford J. Sterling, 42, commercial fisherman of the Dexter-Baggs Corners state road, was killed instantly at 9:20 Sunday night when he was struck by a car as he was walking home.

The car that struck the man was being driven north by Claude O. Phelan, 68, Dexter, former village clerk. Phelan told investigators when he had turned out on the shoulder of the highway to avoid two dogs fighting on the pavement and he felt a thud as he swung back into his traffic lane.

Stopping his car, Phelan found his right headlight jammed back but could not see a body on the road. He drove to Dexter where he told Deputy Sheriff Fred V. Jackson he had struck something in the road. Jackson and Deputy Sheriff Arthur Sprague went to the scene and with the aid of their flashlights discovered the body in a four-foot ditch along the east side of the road.

Sterling had fractures of both legs, a fracture at the base of the skull and a broken neck.

Phelan, whose wife, Mrs. Susie Wilder Phelan, was riding with him, said that as the accident occurred the headlights of two approaching cars temporarily blinded him. Neither he nor his wife saw Sterling.

The Phelans had been visiting their daughter, Mrs. Robert K. Hackett, Campbell's Point. Sterling was walking at a point 500 yards south of the junction of the airport road when he was killed. He was on his left side of the road, facing oncoming traffic.

The fact that he was walking on the left side of the highway was established when officials of the sheriff's office said two women—Miss Alice J. Worden and Miss Betty Cagwin, both of 115 William street—told them they had seen the man a few minutes before the accident. They said he was walking along the east side of the road in a southerly direction.

After the deputy sheriffs discovered the body, Dr. R. J. Haas, Chaumont, was called and the body was removed to the Johnson funeral home at Dexter. The physician said Sterling was instantly killed.

Student Tells of Escape From Fire

ESCAPES IN FIRE—Miss Jeannine M. Aikin, 18, of 126 Ward street, who escaped unhurt from the Cazenovia Junior college fire early Thursday morning, points to a photograph of the fire to indicate the dormitory room which she occupied with a roommate.

Miss Jeannine M. Aikin Had Difficulty in Making Way Out of Burning Seminary.

Miss Jeannine Marie Aikin, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Aikin, 126 Ward street, and second semester freshman of the Cazenovia Junior college, today related her harrowing experience of fleeing the west wing dormitory of the college early Thursday morning as the spectacular $500,000 fire swept through the structure. Miss Aikin, uninjured, arrived home late Thursday.

Miss Aikin, one of the last of the students to leave Callanan hall of the college campus before it was destroyed, estimated her personal loss from the fire as at least $1,800, but was thankful that she escaped with her life.

The student said she "lost everything" in the fire. She suffered the loss of her fur coat, Alpaca coat, rain coat and her luggage—her entire wardrobe—as well as her jewelry, radio, eye glasses, all of her school books and supplies, an album and various other personal property left behind as she made her hurried exit from the flaming building.

Because there was no time to come aware of the fire, she was clad only in her pajamas and house coat as she calmly made her way out of blazing Callanan Hall with her roommate, Miss Deborah Adelson of Newport, R. I. Both were scantily-clad and bare-footed.

Miss Aikin modestly disclaimed credit for saving the life of her roommate as she told in her account of her dramatic escape, how she first aroused Miss Adelson.

"I went to bed a little late Wednesday night and I was dozing and just about to go to sleep when I heard a lot of noise and commotion in the hall," said Miss Aikin.

"I was in Callanan Hall, one of the dormitories. I didn't know what the noise was all about at first. First, I heard somebody calling out about smoke in the hall. I didn't smell any of the smoke, so I decided I ought to get up and see what it was.

"I got up and opened the door. I looked to the right. The hall was evacuated and there was nothing but smoke—you couldn't see a thing."

Miss Aikin explained that in routine fire drills she had been taught to leave the building by the right exit in the event of a fire or other emergency. Since she and Miss Adelson occupied a room located at the far end of the corridor, near the right exit, they had been instructed to leave by the door on the right, the closest exit.

"The fire drills helped us a lot", continued Miss Aikin. "We have been taught to go to the right in case of fire because the door on the right was the closest exit, but the fire was spreading from the direction of the right."

"I went back to my room and screamed to my roommate, Debbie Adelson, who was still asleep. She got up, I grabbed my housecoat and we started out. She had no coat and neither of us had socks or shoes on — didn't have time to get any more clothes. Debbie had on only her pajamas."

We were way up at the end of the long corridor.

"We turned to the left, where there was smoke, but no flames. The flames were in back of us. Then we more or less felt our way along the walls of the wide corridor. We were way up at the other end of the long corridor."

"We then went down a sort of a winding stairway through the smoke. I was coughing while I was in the hall and I thought I was going to be overcome by the smoke. The stairway brought us back of the dining room on the first floor, we then had to go through a hallway and then were outside, safe."

Of the three halls on the second floor of the dormitory—Callanan, Centennial and Eddy Halls—Callanan Hall, where Miss Aikin was housed, was damaged the worst. Phyllis Watson, Rochester girl who was trapped and is believed to have perished in the ruins, was on the third floor.

"We were the last in our hall to get out," said Miss Aikin.

The fire, which has claimed the lives of two persons and probably that of Miss Watson, also, is believed by Miss Aikin to have started in the basement.

A total of about 110 students roomed on the second and third floors, said Miss Aikin, the domestics occupying the fourth floor rooms.

After reaching the safety of the street, Miss Aikin and her roommate walked barefooted through the snow to the infirmary next door, where teachers provided the two girls with more wearing apparel and shoes. That the movements of all the students might be recorded and the names of the missing become quickly known, all the students assembled at the various student houses were required to register their names. Through this manner, school authorities were able to discover who were missing after the fire.

Miss Aikin spent part of the early morning hours in a nearby student house, from which point she watched the fire and rescue operations. She described how a hysterical student trapped on the third floor was rescued by a volunteer Cazenovia youth.

"I saw a girl in the room practically above mine on the third floor who wouldn't get out onto the firemen's ladder. Her roommate was coming down the ladder. She was very hysterical and wouldn't follow. A town boy finally went up the ladder and carried her down. It was very spectacular."

Since sparks from the blaze were flying toward nearby buildings, the infirmary and then the three student houses, Blakeslee, Vollmer and Thomas, were all evacuated.

Miss Aikin commended the hospitality of the townspeople who turned out en masse to assist at the fire and offer the students shelter for the night. As a result of their generosity, Miss Aikin spent part of the early morning hours at a private home.

"It was 6 a. m. before I finally got to bed and the fire was still burning", said Miss Aikin.

Miss Aikin also paid tribute to Miss Elizabeth Phisterer of Boonville, president of the college, and Prof. John Casey, science instructor, for their heroic deeds. When the fire was first discovered, Miss Phisterer hurried to assist firemen and aided in bringing the fire hose from across the back lot. Professor Casey had the presence of mind to hurry into the science class room and throw out all of the chemicals and to close all of the connecting steel doors to prevent the fire from spreading to class rooms.

Miss Aikin made the trip home in borrowed clothing. Townspeople drove her, with other students, to Syracuse from Cazenovia in time to catch the 2:15 bus for Watertown. Money for her bus fare was also borrowed. She arrived here about 5 p. m. with Miss Marion M. Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Leslie Lewis, 235 Padlock street, also a student at the college.

Other northern New York students of Cazenovia who made the trip on the bus with Miss Aikin are Miss Helen E. Perry, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Thomas Perry, Black River, who came home clad only in pajamas and coat; Miss Margaret Y. Bonadio, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Bonadio, 325 Winslow street; Miss Jacqueline Mastic, Ogdensburg, and Miss Jacqueline Shields, Massena.

GEORGE COOKE 85 YEARS OLD

Native of England Has Resided in North Country Since 1875.

Evans Mills, April 16.—George Cooke, who resides with his daughter, Miss May Cooke on Church street, quietly celebrated his 85th birthday at his home here Wednesday.

Mr. Cooke was born at Shrewsbury, Shropshire, England, April 14, 1863, the youngest of ten children of Joseph and Elizabeth Abigail Davis Cooke. At the age of seven, Mr. Cooke left England with his family by way of London and came to Quebec, Que.

Mr. Cooke has remarked that there is a great difference in crossing the ocean today than at that time for it took them 21 days to make the trip across. Circumstances prevented them from sailing on the boat they had arranged to take and they took a later boat. The earlier boat was shipwrecked and all lives were lost. The two older brothers of Mr. Cooke who had gone to Canada a year previous believed the family lost at sea for a time.

The Cooke family settled in Toronto where they lived a year. Then moved to Kingston and later to Simcoe island.

In 1875 they came to New York state and rented the Beckwith farm, located about one mile from Evans Mills on the Kaiser school house road. Mr. Cooke attended the school at Evans Mills located at the present site of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig Angerer. His first teacher was Miss Clara Holbrook, daughter of the pastor of the Methodist church here.

Some years later the Cooke family purchased a farm at Port Ontario on the old plank road.

MRS. G. PEARL CHRISTIE AND ELMER H. QUENELL MARRIED

Norwood, Dec. 24. — Mrs. G. Pearl Christie of Norfolk and Elmer H. Quenell of Massena were married Friday evening in the Norwood Congregational church. Rev. Farley Wheelwright, pastor, performed the ceremony.

The couple was attended by Mrs. Elizabeth P. Fetterky of Norfolk, daughter of the bride, and David Rankin of Massena.

Mr. Quenell is a foreman at Alcoa and a member of the Alcoa 25-year club. Mrs. Quenell is active in the Rebekahs and Eastern Stars.

This is the second marriage for each. Mrs. Quenell's first husband, William V. Christie died in September, 1954. Mr. Quenell's first marriage terminated in divorce. His first wife was Mildred Santiman.

The couple will make their home on the Norwood-Norfolk road. They plan a three-week trip to Florida in January.

This is the present site of the Selkirk state park. Mr. Cooke attended the Pulaski academy, later becoming a teacher in that vicinity until he decided to enter the medical profession. For four years he studied under Dr. F. S. Lowe at Pulaski. However poor health and an eye condition prevented him from completing the course.

For several years he sailed the Great Lakes and then took up farming. He and his brother purchased the Anthony farm in the town of Pamela now owned by a nephew, Joseph Cooke.

On July 25, 1894 he married Miss Kate L. Mallett, daughter of George Mallett at her home on Galloway street road near this village. A brother, Rev. William Cooke, archdeacon of the Episcopal diocese, performed the ceremony. Two children were born to the couple, Laura May Cooke and Charles J. Cooke employed by the J. C. Penny Co., in Watertown.

Mr. and Mrs. Cooke operated farms both in this vicinity and near Brownville and Millens Bay. In 1924 they retired and moved to this village where they purchased the old stone house built over a century ago and located on Main street. This was formerly the home of one of Evans Mills' first merchants, A. M. Cook. Charles Cooke and his wife reside there at present. Mrs. Cooke died Aug. 1, 1938.

Mr. Cooke is in fairly good health although confined to a wheel chair. About a year ago he became unable to walk after an attack of arthritis. He is a great reader and spends much of his time reading the Bible, as well as current events in the paper. He is the only living member of the family of ten. Mr. Cooke is a communicant of St. Andrews Episcopal church.

Nine Flee When Fire Destroys 2 Chaumont Blocks

Starts in Heating Plant of Jaquay Building — Loss Estimated at $45,000.

(Special to The Times.)

Chaumont, Dec. 19.—Nine persons, four of them thinly clad in night clothing, escaped to safety in sub-zero weather and four others evacuated a nearby building when a $45,000 fire destroyed the old Jaquay and Diefendorf blocks, center of the village, at 4 this morning.

The fire, which started near the heating plant of the Jaquay building, wrecked that block which contained two stores, one a Red & White grocery store and the other a dry good store, and a second floor apartment. Fanned by a brisk wind, the flames also badly damaged the adjacent Diefendorf block which was occupied by a barber shop and a second story apartment.

Six fire departments, Chaumont, Dexter, Depauville, Brownville, Clayton and Cape Vincent, were summoned to the scene although the latter three were not utilized. Upwards of 100 men were engaged in fire fighting operations, the blaze being placed under control at 7 this morning.

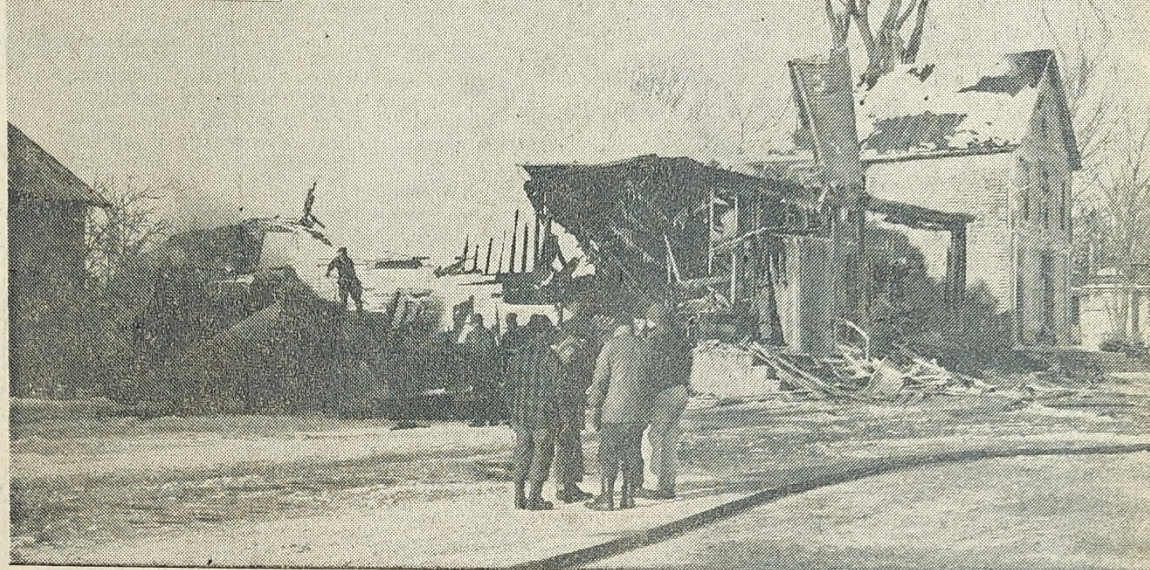

Escaping to safety through dense smoke and fire were Mrs. Marjorie Wheeler, 38, widow of Irvine Wheeler; her two daughters, Miss Connie Wheeler, 20, a Syracuse university student, and ten-month-old Donna Lee Wheeler, and Harold H. King, 26, an employee of the grocery store who maintained living quarters in the building.

Mrs. Wheeler, owner of the Jaquay block and its two stores, suffered from exposure and shock and is under the care of a physician. Each of the four persons was clad in night clothing and the only additional protection for the infant Wheeler girl against twelve below temperatures was a light blanket. After their escape, the four were taken to the home of neighbors.

Fleeing from the Diefendorf block were Mr. and Mrs. Jay Love, owners of the building, and their three children, Hilda M., 17; Lillian E., 14 and Joy Ann, 8.

Discovery of the fire was made by Mr. Love who, because of sickness, arose at 4 this morning. From a bathroom window, Mr. Love observed a mass of flames in the main part of the adjacent Jaquay block.

Mr. Love, who operated the barber shop in his Diefendorf block, aroused his family and evacuated the building when it was apparent that the structure was doomed by fire.

block, which contained two store and an apartment, while the Diefendorf building, at the right, was badly damaged.

Mr. and Mrs. Love are credited with facilitating the escape of the Wheeler family and Mr. King. After leaving their apartment, Mr. and Mrs. Love hurried to the Jaquay block and pounded on the door leading to the second floor Wheeler apartment. They also tossed rocks against the upstairs windows in an effort to arouse members of the Wheeler family and Mr. King.

It took Mr. and Mrs. Love nearly five minutes before they aroused Miss Wheeler who in turn awakened her mother and Mr. King to escape to safety through fire and smoke.

Raging flames threatened the nearby Crescent Hotel, operated by Bernard J. Tierney, forcing the evacuation of Mr. Tierney, his wife, Robert Dempsey and Harvey Cole. However, quick work by firemen, who kept a steady stream of water on the Crescent Hotel properties, prevented the fire from extending to that structure.

The Jaquay block is a total destruction and only smoldering debris marked the scene at mid-morning. The exterior of the Diefendorf building was badly charred while the interior was swept by flames destroying personal belongings of the Love family.

Fire Chief Ivan Becker, Chaumont fire department, estimated the overall loss to both blocks and its contents would reach $45,000, part of which is covered by insurance.

Harold King, employee of the Red & White and dry goods stores in the Jaquay block, said that $20,000 in stock was destroyed.

Building and furnishings were valued at upwards of $10,000. Mr. Love, who bought the Diefendorf block four months ago, said that his loss would reach $7,500. Mr. Love and volunteers managed to salvage barber shop equipment.

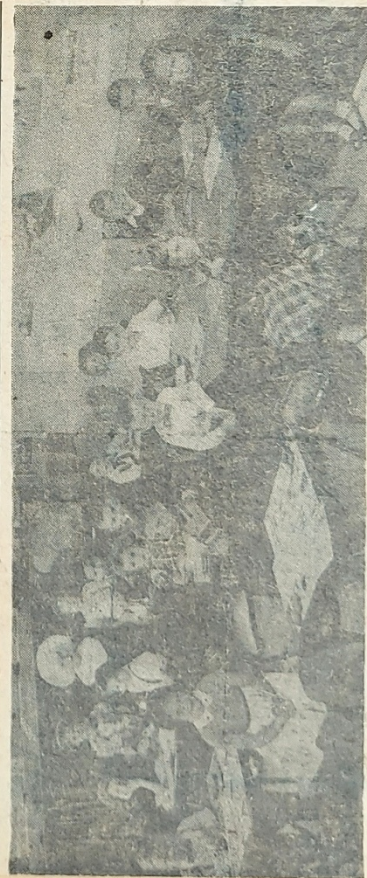

The Jaquay block, a two-story wooden structure, was 70 feet long and 40 feet wide. Mrs. Wheeler bought the building five years ago from John Wilde, Chaumont. Since the death of Mr. Wheeler last February, Mrs. Wheeler had been in charge of operation of the grocery and dry goods stores on the main floor of the block.

It is believed that the fire started near the automatic stoker located at the center of the Jaquay building.

Fire Chief Becker, Chaumont department, said that when his volunteer firemen arrived the Jaquay block was in a mass of flames. Firemen had to lay 1,000 feet of hose to reach a water supply from Horse Creek, both at the bridge and near the Crescent Mill.

Water for eight lines of hose was

Donaldson's Body Found In Mill Haven Creek as Search Entered 6th Day

Detected in Clump of Weeds of Inlet
Only Six Feet from Shore—Autopsy
Held at Napanee, Ont.—Drowning Indicated.

(Special To The Times)

Kingston, Ont., Sept. 4.—The body of Howard B. Donaldson, 49, of 173 TenEyck street, Watertown, N. Y., was found in Mill Haven creek, 15 miles west of Kingston, at 8:50 a. m. today.

Provincial Constables J. A. Morden and W. E. Smith of Napanee identified the body as that of the New York state public service commissioner who had been missing from a camp at Mill Haven since Thursday morning.

The body was found in a heavy patch of weeds, about six feet from the shore of the 30-foot wide creek and approximately 75 yards from the camp which Commissioner and Mrs. Donaldson had occupied since last Monday night.

Edward Wemp of Amherst island, who was visiting the proprietor of the Mill Haven summer colony, Harvey Seabrook, found the body. The shoulder was above water, and the feet were tangled in the weeds, police said. Water at the point where the discovery was made is about four feet deep.

The identification was made, according to police, from a description given them by members of the family when Mr. Donaldson disappeared. Clothing on the body tallied with that mentioned by members of the family, police said.

There were no shoes on the body when it was retrieved from the weeds, police said. Commissioner Donaldson was wearing a pair of moccasins when he disappeared from the camp last week. The body was just to the north of a highway bridge across which Wemp was walking when he saw the shoulder above the surface of the water.

Dragging operations were carried on nearby after Commissioner Donaldson disappeared, but this point had not been combed because of the weeds, according to provincial police.

Coroner D. H. Hall of Napanee authorized removal of the body to Wartman's undertaking establishment at Napanee, where an autopsy was to be performed this afternoon. Dr. W. D. Hay of Queens university, this city, will perform the post-mortem examination.

Provincial Police Officers Morden and Smith called the commissioner's relatives at Watertown, and his brothers, G. Wesley Donaldson, Watertown, his law partner, and Floyd Donaldson, Carthage, president of the Carthage National Exchange bank, were understood to be en route here to claim the body. Mrs. Donaldson will accompany them, it was understood.

Pending results of the autopsy, the indications were that drowning had caused death, authorities said, adding that there was no evidence of foul play. There were no marks or bruises about the body.

Mrs. Donaldson, the former Miss Violet Harron, was with the two Donaldson children, William, 8, and Janis, 7, at their cottage at Paradise Park, between Millen's Bay and Cape Vincent, when notified of the tragedy.

The children had not previously been informed of their father's disappearance.

Commissioner Donaldson's brothers had remained here until Monday assisting with the search. Mrs. Donaldson returned briefly to Watertown Sunday then came here that evening. She went back to Watertown Monday.

Discovery of the body came as Ontario provincial police continued to comb the area about Mill Haven, where the New York state official and his wife arrived last Monday night.

When he saw the body floating, Wemp raised an alarm at the summer colony, and police were called. Provincial Constables Morden and Smith then notified the coroner.

Before the finding of the body brought an abrupt end to the search for the missing Public Service commissioner, the hunt for Commissioner Donaldson had widened from the area about Mill Haven to the New York state side of the border.

There New York state police, acting on Albany orders from Superintendent John A. Gaffney, ran down all probable leads. A teletype alarm went out from the state capital instructing all state police to be on the lookout for the missing official.

In line with Gaffney's orders, Sgt. H. Michael McCann, Bureau of Criminal Investigation agent, of Adams, N. Y., went to the Donaldson summer home near Cape Vincent over the weekend in search of a clue to the official's disappearance. He apparently found nothing in the nature of a lead, however.

Meantime, from Albany came a disclosure that Governor Dewey, who last March appointed Mr. Donaldson as Public Service commissioner, had urged him early this summer to take an extended rest. The commissioner was said to have been in ailing health for nearly six months, and, according to police reports from Canada, was suffering from loss of memory when he disappeared.

The Donaldson children were not with Commissioner and Mrs. Donaldson at Mill Haven last week.

Mrs. Donaldson said today her husband had not slept well in six months and that as a result he had become greatly fatigued. Commissioner Donaldson had just left a rest home when he and Mrs. Donaldson went to Mill Haven last Monday. They intended to go on to Lake Muskoka, north of Toronto, when reservations were completed. The commissioner had been at the rest home for a month prior to their going to Mill Haven, she said.

Concerning his disappearance Thursday, Mrs. Donaldson said:

"We ate breakfast on the front lawn and at 10 Howard picked up a magazine and started to walk toward a little nook in the cedars, a short distance away. I thought he planned to read a short time. I was in the cottage at the time."

"Forty-five minutes later, I went outdoors, but he was nowhere in sight. I thought nothing of it at the time and believed that he had decided to walk around the colony. We had a reservation for dinner at noon and when he did not return at that time, I became alarmed."

Mrs. Donaldson said that her husband had been in good spirits on the morning in question but that he was "very tired." She said that he was unable to sleep Wednesday night because of his nervous condition and a violent thunderstorm.

Mrs. Donaldson asked Seabright if he had seen her husband, and when he said he had not, a search was begun. Some soldiers working nearby assisted, and police were called in to investigate.

Judge Howard Belmont Donaldson was born at the village of St. Lawrence between Clayton and Cape Vincent, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Donaldson. Judge Donaldson's father conducted a general store for years at St. Lawrence and there Judge Donaldson received his elementary education, later attending the Clayton High school and then coming to the Watertown High school, from which he was graduated in 1914.

After that he entered the local law offices of McCartin, Alverson & Cornwall and then went to the Albany Law school, from which he was graduated in June, 1918, and enlisted in the U. S. Naval Reserves, the first World War then being in progress. He served at the Pelham Bay station in the metropolitan area and upon his discharge from the service returned to this city.

Early in July, 1919, he was admitted to practice and opened his own offices here, Sept. 19 of that year, being the youngest attorney in the county at that time to be admitted to practice, having been but 22.

When County Judge Claude B. Alverson assumed his duties as supreme court justice Jan. 1, 1921 the firm of McCartin, Alverson & Cornwall was dissolved and young Donaldson formed a partnership with Attorney George S. McCartin, who had been a member of that firm. Also on the same date Mr. Donaldson became confidential clerk to Justice Alverson and served in that capacity until the death of Justice Alverson Dec. 23, 1922.

Justice Alverson was also immediately succeeded on the supreme court bench by Edward N. Smith under gubernatorial appointment and Justice Smith appointed Attorney Donaldson his confidential clerk. On April 1, 1924, he resigned this position with Justice Smith and devoted all of his time to law practice, shortly forming a partnership with the late Assemblyman Jasper W. Cornaire under the firm name of Cornaire & Donaldson.

Always a staunch and active Republican brought up in politics under the tutelage of Judge Alverson, he was elected chairman of the Republican city committee Oct. 20, 1927 and became assistant district attorney under District Attorney Melvin F. Kinkley Jan. 1, 1928. In the fall of 1930 he was elected district attorney by the largest majority accorded a candidate for county office that year and in 1933 was elected for a second term of three years, retiring at the end of 1936 to engage in private practice. In 1938 he was elected county judge for a term of six years and was reelected in 1944. He was in his seventh year as county judge when Governor Dewey appointed him a member of the New York state public service commission. This appointment was confirmed by the state senate March 14 of this year and March 27 he resigned as county judge and was sworn in as public service commissioner early in April.

On March 8, 1936 Judge Donaldson married Miss Violet I. Harron and April 21, 1937 the first of their two children, William Howard Donaldson, was born. Their other child is Janis.

Judge Donaldson was elected chancellor of the Blackstone Society, an organization of young attorneys and law clerks upon its formation Sept. 28, 1925. He was vice president of the Jefferson County Bar Association and a member of the executive committee of the New York State Bar association. He was head of the local law firm of H. B. & G. W. Donaldson, which he organized with his brother, G. Wesley Donaldson, Nov. 1, 1935. In April, 1927 he was elected chairman of the Republican county committee to succeed Roy A. Fuller and served until he went on to the county court bench.

During his term as county judge he was called to Kings, Queens and Westchester counties to preside at terms and heard one of the Murder, Inc., cases.

Judge Donaldson had traveled extensively. He was at Queens university, Kingston, Ont., Oct. 26, 1919, when an LL.D. was conferred upon the Prince of Wales, now the Duke of Windsor. During the summer of 1926 he toured England, Scotland, Germany, France, Holland and Switzerland, and several times he had been to Cuba and Florida.

For many years Judge Donaldson had been a communicant of St. Paul's Episcopal church in this city, of which he was a vestryman and one of the leaders in its affairs.

Since becoming of age he had been a member of the Masonic fraternity, belonging to the several York Rite and Scottish Rite bodies. He was high priest of Watertown Chapter, No. 59, R. A. M., in 1925-26 and commander of Watertown Commandery, No. 11, Knights Templar in 1926 and in 1927 was appointed assistant grand lecturer of capital Masonary in the second Jefferson-Lewis district. He was potentate of Media Temple A. A. O. N. M. S. in 1936. In 1931 he was made president of the Men's Club of St. Paul's church and in 1932 was Jefferson county's chairman on the New York State Lawyer's committee supporting Col. William J. Donovan for governor.

92 YEARS OLD — Mrs. Etta Smith, Market street, Cape Vincent, observed her 92nd birthday April 23. She was honored by members of the grange. She is a member of the grange, the Improvement league and St. John's Episcopal church at Cape Vincent.

Luis M. Henderson Is Killed in Accident

Former Watertown and Glen Park Author and Artist Dies in Collision.

Luis M. Henderson, 51, New York city author and commercial artist and a one-time resident of Watertown and Glen Park, was killed together with a Winslow, Ariz., truck driver Monday when the car Mr. Henderson was driving collided with a truck on highway 89, about 90 miles north of Flagstaff, Ariz.

Mrs. Henderson, the former Miss Ruth Carter of New York, was seriously injured.

Killed with Mr. Henderson was the driver of the truck, Albert L. Ashenfleter, 44. Police said that Mr. Henderson was driving south when his car and the Ashenfleter truck collided, according to the Associated Press.

Mr. Henderson's sister, Mrs. Jesse P. (Elizabeth) Brown, 522 Frontenac street, was notified of his death through a telegram she received Tuesday evening from her cousin, Dr. William I. Henderson, head of the Wickersham hospital, New York. The telegram stated Mr. Henderson had been killed at Flagstaff, Ariz., but contained no details of the tragedy.

Dr. Henderson was notified of the fatality by Arizona authorities after they found the doctor's name on papers Mr. Henderson carried on his person.

Surviving Mr. Henderson, besides his wife and his sister, Mrs. Brown, are another sister, Mrs. Thomas (Margaret) Lockyear, Oneonta, and a niece, Mrs. John R. (Muriel) Kettinger, 416 Gotham street.

A free lance writer and artist, Mr. Henderson, accompanied by his wife, was returning home from an extended tour which took him across the country and into British Columbia in quest of material he was gathering in preparation for a book he was writing on famous fishing spots. The couple had been on the tour since June, having left their New York city apartment then.

On the return trip, Mr. and Mrs. Henderson traveled along a route which took them through the state of Washington and then down the west coast. They were driving through Arizona when their car collided with the truck.

Last May and June, Mr. Henderson completed a trip to Alaska, where he collected material for an oil company.

He was a veteran of both World wars. In the second war, he narrowly escaped death in France when the army jeep in which he and a captain were riding near the front lines crashed through a bridge when the bridge suddenly gave way. Mr. Henderson was seriously injured, but the captain was killed. Through a strange coincidence, Mr. Henderson was removed to the same hospital in Toule, France, where he was a patient while serving in the army during the first war. When he recovered consciousness following the jeep accident, Mr. Henderson discovered to his amazement that he was not only in the same hospital but in the same ward where he was under treatment for the "flu" 26 years before.

Luis M. Henderson

Prominent among field and stream sports enthusiasts for his paintings of fish and game scenes, for his color photography and for his various other illustrations, Mr. Henderson had been a frequent contributor to magazines.

He had painted many of the covers for "Field and Stream" and other publications and the popular sports magazine had also printed many of his self-illustrated stories. "Sportsman's Hand Book" contains his works. He was the author of not only part of its text, but also of all of its illustrations.

In addition, Mr. Henderson had written and illustrated a number of children's books.

Two years ago he spent the summer on the St. Lawrence river gathering material for the book, "Yesterday's River," a history of the St. Lawrence. However, it has not yet been published. He contributed his own paintings, color photography and other illustrations for it.

He was born at Alexandria Bay Nov. 14, 1899, a son of William N. and Martha Henderson. In his youth he lived at Glen Park. His early education was received in the public schools of Glen Park and Watertown and he was graduated from the Watertown High school in 1917.

In the first World War, Mr. Henderson was a private in Company E, 28th Engineers. He enlisted in the spring of 1918, when 18 years old, and after only a few weeks training, was sent to France. There he served with a combat outfit in several of the final offensives of the war. After the Armistice, he was stationed for nearly six months near Nancy, returning to this country in the summer of 1919.

After his first war service, he attended the University of Buffalo, where he studied art. Subsequently, he conducted a sign and poster painting establishment in this city and then moved to New York city, where he became a prominent commercial artist. He left Watertown about 1922.

He married Miss Ruth Carter of New York in 1938.

In World War II, he again served overseas. Inducted into the army in 1942, he was on duty at various army posts in the country before embarking for England in the spring of 1944. During his training period, he qualified as a graduate armorer, having charge of all fire-power on a plane, guns, bombs and cannon. Later, because of his ability as an artist, he was assigned to intelligence work with the photo interpreter, and in that branch of service he rose to the rank of a staff sergeant while he was in England. From England, he was later sent to France for combat duty.

He remained in France until late in 1945, when he was discharged from military service.

As an artist, he did specialties in dog portraits, many of which were placed on sale at the "Crossroads of Sports," New York business establishment.

In March, 1942, shortly before his induction into the army for the second time, he entered into competition with several other artists for assignment to paint the picture which adorns the du Pont calendars. He went to Tennessee during the running of the National Bird Dog Championship and submitted the painting of the champion, Luminary, which was used on the company's calendar for the year and won for him the assignment to paint future bird dog immortals.

"The Outdoor Guide" was among his works and in the book Mr. Henderson has an interesting chapter on weathersigns.

His cousin, Dr. Henderson, planned to leave for Arizona Tuesday night after receiving word of the tragedy.

AROUND THE CURVE—During the summer months, this highway is one of the most heavily traveled in the Lake Ontario-St. Lawrence river section. Motorists enjoy driving over this course to watch vessels steaming up and down the St. Lawrence. The spot shown here is at Millens Bay, looking from the direction of Cape Vincent as the highway winds around a sharp curve before continuing on towards Clayton. In summer, the three sprawling trees on the inside of the curve cast deep shade over the roadway. Now they are bare. And the bay at the left, coated with ice now, is literally alive with small craft from late May to September.

Boy Is Shot to Death By Playmate, Aged 9

Accidentally Inflicted Wound Causes Death
of George Lloyd, 13, Near Sackets Harbor.

George Lloyd, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lloyd, Sackets Harbor-Baggs Corners county road, was killed Sunday afternoon by a shotgun charge in the stomach accidentally inflicted by a nine-year-old neighbor and playmate, Elwin Anderson.

The Lloyd youth died from loss of blood as young Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Anderson, raced from the pasture where the tragedy occurred to the Lloyd home to arouse the victim's father.

The boys had spent most of Sunday playing in the pasture. The shooting took place a short time after the Lloyd boy had loaded the single-shot weapon when he thought a bird he saw was a pheasant. When it turned out to be a gull, he handed the gun to Anderson and they started walking across the pasture.

Apparently unaware that the shotgun was loaded, Anderson, in a playful mood, pointed the gun toward Lloyd and pulled the trigger, authorities said.

According to the young boy's story to investigators at the sheriff's office Sunday night, Elwin, not realizing the shell was still in the chamber, suddenly pulled back the hammer to cock the gun and then pointed it in Lloyd's direction. He said he pulled the trigger and the gun went off. Lloyd was about 15 feet away when the shot tore into his left side, just below the ribs.

"Oh," the victim exclaimed, holding his stomach. "Get my father. Get my father."

Then Lloyd fell to the ground. "Get some help," he instructed the frightened youngster.

Anderson told investigators that he fled, "as fast as I could run," to the Lloyd home. In his excitement he held onto the heavy gun and carried it along with him.

Anderson told Lloyd's father of the shooting and the elder Lloyd ran to the scene and then to the county road where he stopped a car occupied by Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Stevenson, 172 Flower avenue east.

The Stevensons took Lloyd to the George Boulton residence near Sackets Harbor where Stevenson called the sheriff's office.

Sheriff Brayton E. Peck went to the scene of the fatality and Dr. J. B. Bickel, Sackets Harbor, was called. When the doctor arrived, Lloyd was dead. Later in the afternoon the body was brought to the Cummings funeral home in this city where Dr. F. W. Porro, pathologist, performed an autopsy. District Attorney Milton A.

Wiltse, who took part in the investigation, said today that Dr. Porro said that the shooting victim had bled to death. The district attorney said that a verdict in the shooting will be rendered following an inquest, scheduled to be started this afternoon.

The sheriff said he received a call from Mr. Stevenson at 4:20 p. m. Mr. Stevenson told the sheriff that Lloyd had stopped his car on the road and told him, "my boy has just been shot up in the pasture and I want to get to a telephone to call the sheriff's office."

There were no eye witnesses to the tragedy other than the nine-year-old boy who pulled the trigger.

Sheriff Peck said the youngster told the following story at the sheriff's office Sunday night where he went with his father to talk with the sheriff and district attorney:

George Lloyd, Elwin Anderson and Anderson's brother, Steven, 14, had gone out into the pasture along a creek on the Lloyd farm where they were building a shack. They worked on the shack until lunch time when they went home. After lunch Lloyd and young Anderson went back to the shack but Steven stayed at home.

Lloyd brought the old-fashioned shotgun with him in the afternoon. After he and young Anderson worked on the shack for a time they decided to go further up the pasture where they both sat on a stone wall at the edge of the pasture.

After Lloyd spotted the bird he first believed to be a pheasant, he slipped a shell into the chamber of the single-shot gun only to discover then that the bird was a gull.

After a few moments, the boys decided to return to the shack and Lloyd handed the gun to his young companion to carry. They had walked about 150 feet before Anderson stopped and playfully pointed the weapon at his companion, pulling the trigger.

Just before the boys sat on the stone fence, they had gone into the apple orchard in the pasture to get apples. They found the apples bitter and decided to build a fire and roast them. Lloyd built the fire but the boys decided the apples were no tastier roasted than raw and they put the fire out.

Sheriff Peck said that the shooting victim's father was alone in the farmhouse when the fatality occurred. Mrs. Lloyd was with a daughter, Mrs. Carl Lundberg, 299 Colburn street, East Dedham, Mass., at the time. She went there a week ago when her daughter was taken seriously ill and entered a hospital.

Young Anderson's father is welfare officer of the town of Hounsfield and is a former justice of the peace of the town. The Lloyds have resided in this section about two years.

George Lloyd was born in Syracuse on March 2, 1933, a son of Harry and Mae Redden Lloyd. His mother was formerly of Kingston, N. Y. He is survived by his parents, his sister in East Dedham, Mass., and two brothers, William and Jack Lloyd, who are at home, having just been released from service. He also leaves an aunt, Mrs. George H. Gregory, 753 Davidson street.

The body was brought to the Cummings Funeral home in Watertown and will be taken at 10 a. m. Tuesday to the family residence, where funeral services will be Wednesday at 2 p. m., Rev. Dr. William C. Cain, pastor of the Sackets Harbor United church, officiating. Burial will be in the North Watertown cemetery.

ETIENNE EDUS HOUSE IN TOWN OF CAPE VINCENT

Built approximately 94 years ago by Etienne Edus on the road known as Hell street near Rosiere in the town of Cape Vincent, this attractive cottage-type house of native limestone has such a beautiful setting with its natural landscaping of trees augmented by plantings of flowers, lilacs and shrubs that it looks in the summer like something which has stepped off an artist's canvas.

Since February, 1939, the property with its nearly 118 acres of land has been owned by Aloysius M. and Elizabeth D. Reff who take great pride in the place. They are the parents of three children, Miss Jane Marie Neff, a cadet nurse at the Queens General hospital, Jamaica, L. I. She trained at Mercy hospital in this city. The other two children are Noel Aloysius and Eulalia Ann.

Both the Reff and Edus families trace their lineage back into old France, the Edus clan having come from historic Rosiere, American emigrants from which brought the name and bestowed it upon that area of the town of Cape Vincent known as Rosiere, home of many a fine old French family. As for the Reff family there was Peter Reff, a native of France, who served under Napoleon, came to this country at the age of 40, settled in the town of Cape Vincent and died at the age of 86.

The land, upon which this house stands, was a part of the vast holdings of the Le Rays and on Nov. 5, 1852, Vincent Le Ray through his agent-attorney, Patrick Somerville Stewart, sold 50.92 acres to Etienne Edus, sometimes known as Stephen Edus, for $312.32. It was he who shortly after that erected the house from stone procured near by. At the age of 76 he made his will June 1, 1887, and provided that Mary Converse should have $1,000 and his house in Cape Vincent village on condition. The condition was that George Ward who had resided with him should have a home there until he was 21 and on the further condition that she become his wife. The rest of his property went to young Ward.

Etienne Edus died May 10, 1894, and Feb. 25, 1897, Mary Converse Edus and George Ward disposed of this stone house and farm on Hell street to Mary A. Masor who had contracted to purchase it of Edus Sept. 12, 1877. On Feb. 28, 1911, she sold it to Nicholas Reff, a young man known town of Cape Vincent farmer and prominent member of the Democratic party who played a strong part in the town affairs of that party and was at times candidate for justice of the peace and assessor. Mr. Reff was the father of Aloysius M. Reff who was born upon the farm. His wife was the former Miss Elizabeth Docteur, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Docteur.

While the front of their house shows the original facing of the stone, one end has been smoothed with veneer of cement and a wing of wood has been added to the other.

BARN, 4 CALVES LOST IN BLAZE

Flames Rapidly Destroy Large Building on Cornaire Farm Near Rosiere.

Cape Vincent, Aug. 22.—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed a large dairy barn, killing four calves and consuming a large quantity of hay, on the farm of Louis Cornaire, Millens Bay-Chaumont road, near Rosiere, Tuesday afternoon.

Firemen of the Cape Vincent volunteer fire department were at the scene again early last night wetting down the smoldering hay, 60 tons of which were destroyed in the fire which leveled the large rectangular barn in a matter of minutes.

Mrs. Cornaire said Wednesday that the total loss had not been determined but added it was only partially covered by insurance.

The fire apparently broke out as a team of ten threshers returned to their work about 12:55 p.m. after having dinner at the Cornaire home. It was reported that the barn burst into flame very quickly.

The heat and flames were so intense that none of the workers could get to the building to attempt to rescue the four calves trapped inside. In a short time the barn was leveled as the large quantity of hay and straw burned quickly.

Also lost was a quantity of milking equipment and other farm tools. A large silo was also destroyed. Firemen saved a nearby granary. Other buildings on the farm, in a row leading away from the barn, untouched were a tractor garage, a hen coop and the farmhouse.

Water was supplied by tank wagons as well as from the local fire department's pumper truck. At 11 p.m. Tuesday night firemen had to return to the scene when the wind came up from a different direction threatening to fan the smoldering hay into flame again.

Although the cause could not definitely be determined some firemen theorized that a spark from the threshing machine may have set off the blaze.

Clifford W. Hewitt Dies At Hospital After Being Shot in Woods Near Otter Pond.

Special To The Times

Star Lake, Nov. 14.—Clifford William Hewitt, 61, Gifford street road, Watertown, a mechanic foreman for the Niagara Mohawk Power corporation, was fatally wounded when struck in the abdomen by a rifle bullet while deer hunting with five companions in the vicinity of Otter Pond, St. Lawrence county, about 9:50 Saturday morning.

Hewitt died at 12:20 p.m. as he was being admitted to the Clifton-Fine hospital. Death was due to internal bleeding and a shattered spleen, according to Dr. Erich Hirsch, Canton, assistant pathologist of St. Lawrence county.

The six-man hunting party was deep in a heavy wooded area about four miles southeast of Star Lake, south of the Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation mines, in the town of Fine. Besides Hewitt, members of the party included: Frederick R. Blydenburgh, 51, of 1109 Salina street, Watertown; Charles V. Trapp, sr., 52; Charles V. Trapp, jr., 25, both of Brownville; Murray J. Bush, 51, Watertown, R.D. 4, and Gene W. Duncan, 24, Calcium.

State police said that Hewitt, Charles Trapp, jr., Bush and Duncan were standing watch during a deer drive. He had taken up a position about 175 feet away from his nearest companion.

Suddenly there was a shot, followed quickly by moaning which attracted Charles Trapp, jr. He investigated and discovered that Hewitt had been struck in the abdomen. Police said they have not yet determined who fired the shot.

Young Trapp immediately fired three shots into the air, an emergency signal to attract other members of his party to the scene. When aid came, young Trapp was sent for help and he ran about one and three-quarters of a mile to the nearest camp from which point he was taken an additional two miles to the Sunny Lake hotel, two miles east of Star Lake on Route 3. From the hotel, he telephoned state police. The Hawley ambulance, Star Lake, was also called.

In the meantime, members of another party in the woods joined Charles Trapp, sr., Blydenburgh, Bush and Duncan and together they placed the wounded Hewitt on a one-wheel deer carrying carriage.

The hunters dragged the deer carrying carriage through the dense woods for one and one-half miles to the Big Otter outlet. There they were met by state police and State Forest Ranger Charles Hutson, Cranberry Lake. The injured Hewitt

PUPIL OF CLAY PIERCE FOUND

Miss Cora Taylor One of Last Pupils of 15 Year-Old
School Teacher of 1887.

By ERNEST G. COOK

Millens Bay, Aug. 29.—"It's one of the largest houses in Millens Bay, right on the corner, and she is probably one of the last people left who went to school to Clay Pierce."

With the suggestion that I visit Mrs. Cora Taylor, in Millens Bay, I drew up in front of the big house on the corner and a young lady answered my knock and ushered me in to the room where Mrs. Taylor was seated, and it was but a moment before history of former days was being unfolded.

"Yes," she said, in reply to my question, "I went to school to Clay Pierce when he taught here in Millens Bay, about 1867, I would think. Anyway, I was born on March 3, 1858, and I was 9 years old when I went to school to him. He was a very fine young man, kind, helpful and very handsome, I thought. One reason, I suppose, why I took a special liking to him, was the fact that my mother passed away that year and I was very sad, and Clay Pierce was so kind to me. He seemed to know how I felt and made every effort to help me along."

"He was only 15 when he taught here, so you can see that he was unusually bright. He was certified by George Strough, commissioner, to teach, even if he was only 15. When he was 16 he went away to the midwest and I guess you know how he became very, very rich in oil. He gave the parsonage to the Methodist church at St. Lawrence; helped with the church, and had that very fine granite wall built at the front of the St. Lawrence cemetery, and the splendid wall, good and high, built all around the cemetery. He was always my ideal teacher, and I always remember him with much respect and kindness."

"I always remember the pleasure I had in going down to the cooper shop of George Torrey, just up here at the head of the Bay, and he would get some of the loveliest, curly shavings from the lumber he was working on and give me so I would have curls for my hair. The Torrey family were early settlers. There were two brothers, pioneers, who came into this county from New Hampshire, and one, Joel, did much work as a cooper. They tell that he invented a joining machine, for the better and quicker making of pails and buckets, but failed to get it patented, and lost the rich income he might have had from it. Maybe he did not care so much about it, but probably was not able to go to the expense of getting the patent.

"Yes, this is an old and historic place. It was named from Hyland Millen, a native of Scotland, who came here, I think, about 1808, and was one of the first settlers here. He died in 1878, at the age of 88, and the place just naturally took its name from him.

"The church here is a Union church and the Episcopalians and the Methodists used to hold services here. It's a good big church, seating maybe 200, but only a handful go now. The Episcopalians are the only ones holding services here now.

"The land for the site of the church was given by a man who lived next door, but across the down street, and on the other corner. His name was John Laird. He donated the land with a consideration, and that I thought as a girl, was a strange one. He stated that the land was free to the church, as long as they never placed a bell in the tower. He was opposed to a bell, in some way, probably thought it was not religious, but as for that I would not know.

"The church building was started in 1869, and finished in 1871. It cost about $2,700 when it was built, but would cost over three times that today.

"Now, about that Pierce family we started out to visit about. The father was Dr. Dyer E. Pierce, of St. Lawrence, and a very fine man. He traveled this country over to call on the sick, driving a light sulkey. I remember when my brother was very sick, not long after my mother died, Dr.

Pierce looked after him. I was greatly worried and the morning my brother was so critical, the doctor drove up to the shop next door and I heard them ask how my brother was. The doctor said that my brother was on the fence, and I didn't know what he could mean, when I knew he was in bed. But he remained until my brother took a turn for the better. Years after I knew what the doctor meant, but in any event he stood by until he got him over the critical period. I can see the doctor now, with a long beard, a kindly smile, a good man."

Alfred Docteur, oldest resident of Sand Bay school district at the present time, was born in 1864 on the farm on which he now resides with his son, Fred Docteur and family.

Mr. Docteur's father, Martin Docteur, purchased this farm in 1862 and took possession with his wife and three children, Martin, Joseph and Mary (later Mrs. James McKeever). Three other children were born on the farm: Alfred, Louis and Rose, who later became Mrs. Cyrus Bass.

Aside from Alfred, the only surviving member of this family, is Louis Docteur who went to Montgomery, Ala., at an early age and was for many years superintendent of an electric plant in that city. After his retirement some years ago, he continued to make his home there. Now at the age of 80 he is planning a visit to his boyhood home after an interval of more than 30 years since his last visit.

The five older children of the Martin Docteur family attended the old school. After the construction of the new building in 1871 some of the family continue their education there. Rose, the youngest member of the family attended only the new school.

Alfred Docteur recalls that he attended the old school only one summer term when he was seven years of age. His first teacher was Myra Caswell whose family resided near Crystal Springs. At the beginning of the winter term the new building had been completed. To the best of his knowledge the only surviving schoolmates of Mr. Docteur, aside from his brother Louis are Bertha Cornwall, Abbey Wright, Burton Rice, George Liddy and Mary Garnsey Lingenfelter.

Alfred Docteur married for his first wife, Miss Mary Delaney of Clayton. Three children were born to them: Clarence, who was killed in action in the first World war; George, now residing in Watertown and Elizabeth, now Mrs. Aloysius Reff of Rosiere. Some time after the death of his first wife, Mr. Docteur married Miss Catherine Hanlon, from Canada, who died several years ago. From this latter marriage there were six children: Fred, present owner of the home farm; John, also a resident of the Sand Bay district; Louis of Syracuse; Melrose, now Mrs. Gerald Pelow, living near St. Lawrence; Agnes, Mrs. Joseph Lawrence of Rosiere; and Ralph of Rosiere.

Of the children in the Alfred Docteur family, Louis, Ralph, Elizabeth and Agnes, attended the Sand Bay school. The other attended the St. Lawrence school as the farm is in both districts.

Mr. Docteur operated his father's farm for a time after his marriage and later purchased it. It was in turn operated by some of his sons, including Fred, who is the present owner.

Fred Docteur, after graduating from St. Mary's High school at Clayton married Mabel Reff, daughter of Leonard and Lena Percy Reff. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Docteur have four children, three of whom, Mary, Lyle and Audrey, are pupils in the Sand Bay school. The third daughter is not yet of school age.

John Docteur also was graduated from St. Mary's school and has one daughter, Jean, in the Sand Bay school. His wife is the former Mildred Reff and is also a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Reff. Mr. and Mrs. John Docteur have two sons of pre-school age.

Melrose Docteur Pelow followed the teaching profession before and after her marriage to Gerald Pelow. She spent five years as teacher of the Sand Bay school. Mr. and Mrs. Pelow are residents of the St. Lawrence district in a farm near the Docteur homestead.

On the maternal side of the families the four children from the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Docteur and Mr. and Mrs. John Docteur represent the fifth generation in the Sand Bay school district near Clayton. Maria Derby, the great-great grandmother of these children taught in the old school at the age of 15 years. Her family lived near the present Roy Ball farm.

Miss Derby married Alson Abbey whose parents lived near Sawmill Creek on what is now known as the Horne farm. After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Abbey lived on a farm at Sand Bay, their home being located on the site of the present summer home of Otto Bachman of Watertown. A daughter, Elsie, was born to the couple and attended the old school.

Elsie Abbey married Alfred Percy who came here from Canada with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Percy, at the age of four years. The family lived on the present Leonard Reff farm and Alfred attended the old school. After their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Percy owned the farm now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Reff and with a substantial amount of adjoining property including what is now Cedar Point State Park.

Of the four sons and three daughters born to Mr. and Mrs. Percy all attended the present school. Howard died while still a young boy. Clarence lived in this district for a time after his marriage and his two sons, Howard and Donald, attended the local school. These two sons saw active service during the second world war and have recently re-enlisted after receiving honorable discharges. Their father, Clarence Percy, died several years ago. Fred Percy has spent most of his married life in the vicinity of LaFargeville. Bessie Percy Neil resides in Watertown while another sister Mildred Percy Consaul makes her home with her daughter in Oswego. The other two members of the family still make their home in the Sand Bay District. Stanley owns a farm on the St. Lawrence road and operates a three mile truck route. His daughter, Audrey Percy Bach, attended the Sand Bay school.

Lena Percy married Leonard Ref of the Millen's Bay section and for many years they operated the Elton Irvin farm a short distance up the river road from Sand Bay. Mrs. Reff's first teacher was Eliza Delaney, who was followed by Gertrude Stedman.

The two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Reff completed the grades at Sand Bay school after which Mildred was graduated from the Clayton High school and Potsdam Normal school. She taught in her home district as well as in nearby districts. After her marriage to John Docteur, son of Alfred Docteur, the couple took over the management of the Irvin farm while Mr. and Mrs. Reff purchased the Percy homestead near the entrance to Cedar Point State Park, where they are now making their home. Mr. and Mrs. John Docteur are the parents of Jean, a fourth grade pupil in Sand Bay school.

Mabel, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reff, is a graduate of St. Mary's school in Clayton. She became the wife of Fred Docteur and the mother of three pupils now attending the local school.

Robert, another son of David Percy, was two years old when his parents came to this section from Canada. He acquired his education in the old school. During the Civil war he served for two and one half years with the Twelfth Artillery. After the war he continued in service for six months acting as guard at the executive mansion in Washington. After his discharge he became a sailor in the Great Lakes and later a United States customs officer.

In 1868 Robert Percy married Cornelia Farr who had come here from Canada with her parents, Edward and Diantha Murdock Farr at the age of five years. The Farr family lived in the house now owned by Mr. and Mrs. William Lenox and Cornelia attended the old school entering there as a pupil about 89 years ago. After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Percy made their home for a time with her parents and later purchased the farm. Following the birth of three sons who died in infancy, a daughter was born to the couple. This daughter, Edna, attended the Sand Bay school.

Edna Percy married William Lennox of Watertown. After living for a time with Mrs. Lennox's parents they became the owners of the home where they still reside. Mrs. Lennox states that her home was conducted as a hotel by a Mr. Kilborn before it was occupied by her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Farr.

Four children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Lennox. The oldest daughter, Cornelia, became a teacher after her graduation from Clayton High school and Clayton Training class. She taught for one year in the Sand Bay school which she and her sisters and brother had attended as children. Cornelia Lennox became the wife of Leon Kilborn of Rosiere. She died about ten years ago leaving an infant daughter, Clarissa. Helen Lennox married Thomas Chatterton of Cape Vincent. The youngest daughter, Ella, lives at home with her parents.

Robert Percy Lennox married Audrey Maloney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Maloney now of Cape Vincent. The couple lives directly across the road from the old homestead in a house which was originally of log construction. Mr. Lennox has remodeled the building into a modern home. He conducts the farm which has been successively owned by his family for three previous generations.

Mr. and Mrs. Lennox have one son, Robert Percy Lennox, jr. This son is now a first grade pupil in the local school representing the fourth generation on the paternal side of his family. His maternal grandfather, Maurice Maloney, also attended this school.

MARRIED — Miss Joan Elizabeth Laemmerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Laemmerman, outer East Church street, Adams, became the bride of Larry J. Dorr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Dorr of Clayton, at a ceremony performed in the Emmanuel Episcopal church at Adams. The couple now lives at Clayton Center. Mrs. Dorr is the school nurse at the LaFargeville Central school. Mr. Dorr helps operate the farm of his grandfather, Alvah Dillenbeck.

To Mabel

Fifty years ago, my colleen,
You became by bonny bride.
Since that time we've walked together
Down life's highway, side by side.

Today again, our thoughts swing
backward,
To scan the record of the years.
Finding most with happy
memories,
Others touched with pain and tears.

In the years that stretch before us,
Be they many, be they few,
May we travel them together,
You needing me, as I need
you.

When we wed, your hair was golden,
As golden as this happy day.
But as summer turns to autumn,
Now your gold has turned to grey

That's one thing I've liked about
you,
My lovely little Irish saint,
You never yet have dyed that hair,
To make it look like what it ain't.

When we are gathered to our Fathers,
Should you fail to make the
show,
I'll petition good Saint Peter,
To let me join you there
below!

Walter June
Theresa, Nov. 24, 1959.

Poem to Mabel

I am on very thin ice. If I write it as a card of thanks, I will be billed for it, which I wish to avoid. Then on the other hand, how else can we voice our appreciation to the many relatives and friends who sent cards and same Sunday, the fifteenth, to make our 50th wedding anniversary a happy occasion?
Our surprise guests ran the gamut from ministers to farmers and even included a lawyer.
The lawyer drank his punch and went back for more. The ministers made no comment. But it was said that one of them looked disappointed. All in all we had a great day and we thank you.
One of the lady guests dared me to write a verse about it, so here goes . . .

RECEIVES SCHOLARSHIP CHECK—Robert J. Bates, left, 18, of 707 William street, Dexter, receives his $200 agricultural scholarship check from Hildreth A. Canell, assistant vice president of the Watertown National bank. Bates is the first Jefferson county high school graduate to receive the scholarship award, to be given annually by the Watertown National bank to a student who wants to study agriculture at Canton Agricultural and Technical institute.

National Bank will select another student from one of the county high schools who wants to study agriculture at the New York state school in Canton to receive a scholarship.

"After this year, the bank will be awarding two scholarship funds annually," said Mr. Canell. "We will see that a student who starts his course will get money to complete his second year at Canton A. T. I. at the same time we select a student to enter the school. It is not the bank's intention to get a boy started in school and then drop him."

Mr. Canell said that Bates has been accepted at Canton Agricultural and Technical institute. A letter was received by Mr. Canell from Glenn E. Wright, director of student personnel at Canton A. T. I., saying that Bates has been enrolled.

Students from schools in Jefferson county, who want to make application for the scholarship, can do so through their school principal, it was explained by Mr. Canell. The recipients will be selected by the Watertown National bank and the school principal. Selection is based on scholastic attainment, extra-curricular activities, general conduct and interest in agriculture.

Bates was active in baseball, basketball, tennis and volleyball at the Dexter school. He was co-captain of the basketball team in his senior year. He also served as treasurer of his freshman class and was active in school dramatics.

Both couples were married in Gouverneur on October 27, 1895.

Neighbors, friends and families visited the Carpenter home to congratulate both couples on their anniversaries. They were presented with a large wedding cake and flowers and received many gifts and cards in commemoration of the event.

Mr. and Mrs. Bigarel, who had been married earlier the same day, acted as attendants at the wedding of Mr. Carpenter and the former Miss Dora E. Shippee of Fowler when they were married by Rev. Greenfield in the Methodist parsonage here. Mr. Carpenter was a native of Fowler, and operated a farm there until 1920, when they moved to Gouverneur. "Boiler Man"

Most of us appreciate the warmth that we enjoy in our places of work throughout the Plant, but few of us ever give much thought to where it comes from and who is responsible for it.

Near the bottom of the two tall smokestacks, we all see when coming to work, is located the coal burning equipment in our boiler room and a group of men are busy twenty-four hours each day seeing that the equipment delivers heat in the shape of steam to every portion of our fifteen acre plant during mild or severe weather. It also serves many process operations during the entire year.

In the picture are shown Mr. D. Warren Jones (right), who has charge of the boiler room and one of the firemen, Mr. Malcolm E. Bates. Other members of the staff are firemen Ben Ward, Emery E. Jones and Floyd N. Williams as well as second firemen Lawrence C. Burns, James Varga and Howard LaClair.

Mr. George Tompkins, Superintendent of the M&C Division, has this department as one of those under his supervision and states that as fuels become more expensive, nothing is more necessary than an understanding of the manner in which fuels burn. With given firing equipment, the men who take care of its operation gain the most intimate knowledge of how to obtain the peak of effectiveness.

As the winter moves along, I am sure we all shall give more thought to the men who make it more comfortable for us to work.

George N. Liddy, 81, Dies in Washington

St. Lawrence Native Noted as Old Time Fiddler — Credited With Originating Idea for Spring Bed Mattress.

Dexter, April 18.—George N. Liddy, 81, native of St. Lawrence, town of Cape Vincent, died Saturday evening at 6 in Providence Hospital, Washington, D. C., where he had been a patient for the past two weeks. Mr. Liddy had been spending the winter months with time tunes best though, most of a son, Frank J. Liddy, who is employed in the Naval research department in that city.

Mr. Liddy was well known throughout this section as one of the few surviving old-time fiddlers for square dances. He also constructed over three dozen violins during the years that he took an active interest in the playing of the instrument. His last public appearances were made about 1934 when an old time fiddlers contest was conducted in connection with the Dexter open air band contest and also at the Avon theater where a number of old-timers appeared in a contest.

He was born Aug. 1, 1867, on the Liddy homestead farm and resided there until he was 45 years old during that time he was actively engaged in farming. Following that he moved to Chaumont where he was engaged in a woodworking shop until he was 65. During the time that he resided in Chaumont he also conducted a grocery store. His parents were James and Mary Armstrong Liddy.

His father, James E. Liddy, was a native of Ireland where he was born March 12, 1828, and arrived in this country in 1846 after a stormy voyage and settled in the town of Cape Vincent. He gained considerable recognition for conceiving the idea of the use of springs in beds and thus revolutionized human comfort in slumber for generations to follow. Previous to this idea, which was first introduced a few days before the Civil War, ropes were used which had to be tightened at frequent intervals to keep the beds in a usable condition.

Although many residents scoffed at the idea when it was first introduced a partnership of local furniture dealers, Henshaw and Van Buren, took an interest in the idea and from the crude beginning the modern spring mattress was evolved. At the time Mr. Liddy did not have enough money to secure patents for his invention, otherwise he would have died a wealthy man.

George N. Liddy showed a marked interest in violin playing and for over half a century he took an active part at square dances either by playing the violin, the bass viol, or by calling off for the dances. The demand for callers decreased a number of years ago and throat trouble also forced him to give up his interest in that form of entertainment. He once said, "Jazz music is like lots of other things—suits those who like the style, I always liked the old-

Some of his favorites included "Old Zip Coon," "Money Musk," "Opera Reel," and "Virginia Reel". Among the old-timers that participated in public contests with him were the late Charles W. Lowe, Lewis Crouse, Howard Getlins during the years that he took an active interest in the playing of the instrument. His last public appearances were made about 1934 when an old time fiddlers contest was conducted in connection with the Dexter open air band contest and also at the Avon theater where a number of old-timers appeared in a contest.

On April 20, 1890, Mr. Liddy married Edith E. Seeber, of Pamelia, in a ceremony at the Brown Mansion, Brownville.

Following the marriage the couple lived in the town of Cape Vincent where Mr. Liddy was actively engaged in farming until 1911 when they moved to Chaumont where he worked as a carpenter in a wood-working shop and also conducted a grocery business. He continued to reside in Chaumont following the death of his wife on March 21, 1934 but lived with a son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry V. Liddy during the winter months a year ago.

Surviving are two sons, Frank J. Liddy of Washington, D. C., Harry V. Liddy of Dexter and a daughter, Mrs. Edith M. Favery, of Chaumont. There are also 14 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. Another daughter, Mrs. Grace Haas, of Chaumont, died Dec. 24, 1946. A brother, Dr. John Liddy, died at the age of 88 in West Palm Beach, Fla. He was at one time a practicing dentist at Clayton. Alexander Liddy and Mrs. Emma Baltz are also deceased.

Mr. Liddy was a charter member of the Chaumont Fire department and was a former member of the Chaumont Masonic and I. O. O. F. lodges as well as the Foresters of Millen's Bay.

The body will be returned to the home of Harry V. Liddy, William street, this village, by the Perl B. Johnson motor hearse and will arrive Monday evening. Friends may call Tuesday afternoon and evening.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 3 from the All Saints Episcopal church, Rev. L. Curtis Denney, officiating. Burial will be made in the Dexter cemetery.

JAMES R. ADAMS HOUSE AT ADAMS COVE —Photo and Caption by David F. Lane

As one turns from the shore road, that passes the long and closely-knit string of summer cottages at Adams Cove, into the Pillar Point highway he sees this old native limestone house in the angle. It faces on the Pillar Point road and directly across from it is the old District school No. 13.

This house is the old James R. Adams farmhouse, the age of which is probably around 115 years. From the heterogeneous and sketchy title record one cannot positively say who the first owner was, but in all likelihood it was Henry Adams, who is mentioned in the histories as having been one of the earliest settlers of Pillar Point.

Across the shore road to the north is the cove, which is a part of Guffin's bay. The cove may have been named for Henry Adams or for several members of the Adams family, for there were a number of them who owned farm lands in that immediate vicinity. James R. Adams, Simeon O. Adams and Henry Adams lived along in a row with John D. Burlingame, Sylvanus Henderson, F. Dibble and other early settlers of what is now the Adams Cove summer colony.

There was a John Adams, son of Henry Adams, born in the town of Rodman, but who settled on Pillar Point in 1834 and married Eunice Farewell, daughter of Solomon and Sabina Burlingame Farewell of Denmark. One of the children of John and Eunice Adams was Milo J. Adams who, incidentally married Laverne E. Adams, daughter of James R. and Margaret Satchwell Adams, owner of this house.

Milo J. Adams is mentioned because on Sept. 3, 1892, he bought the 55.74-acre tract where this farm is from Mary C. Adams Emerson, Kearney county, Nebraska, who was the daughter of James R. and Margaret Satchwell Adams and wife of Charles D. Emerson, and who inherited her interest in the farm from her father.

This 55.74-acre tract was purchased by James R. Adams from Henry Adams for $1,000 on May 1, 1866, which leads to the belief that this house was built for Henry. There is, however, in the farm today another tract of 50 acres and a small parcel of .32 of an acre, which Washington Coster, New York city speculator in North Country lands, sold to Mrs. Elmira Hunter on Nov. 20, 1839, and which the Hunter heirs disposed of to Sylvanus Henderson March 15, 1865.

It remained for Frank M. Bosworth of this city, to bring the 55.74 acres, 50 acres and .32 of an acre together into the present farm in 1906, he having bought one parcel on Sept. 15 and the other on Sept. 18 of that year.

On Jan. 11, 1908, he disposed of the whole to A. H. Lefebvre, Black River Traction company manager and local industrialist. Mr. Lefebvre sold the property to William Allison, Dexter, April 15, 1915. The following Nov. 15 Mr. Allison conveyed the place to Mary A. Herrick and on Sept. 22, 1944, Mary A. Herrick sold to George W. Olin, the present owner.

Unquestionably there is interesting history tied into the story of this old house, just as there is into practically every old stone house in the entire North Country, but apparently none of it has been reduced to writing and so has been lost to the present generation.

By MRS. MARJORIE ROACHER

Brownville, June 12.—An assembly of 125 persons, composed of members of the board of education, faculty members, alumni, Parent-Teacher association, and former teachers of Brownville-Glen Park Central school, attended a banquet in honor of Frank E. Smith, retiring principal, at Fisher's Hotel in Brownville, Monday evening.

Rev. James J. McGowan of the Catholic church of Brownville offered an invocation.

Richard W. Foley, president of the board of education, was toastmaster and introduced Mrs. Victoria Burns of Antwerp, a former teacher, who led singing. Mrs. John Garrity was accompanist.

A solo, "Bless This House", was sung by Miss Rowena Peterson, school librarian, accompanied by Miss Nina Walker, nine-year-old pianist.

Mr. Foley spoke of the progress of religious education in the school and of the help Mr. Smith had given the school board in obtaining centralization. He also paid tribute to the extraordinary disciplinary system inaugurated by Mr. Smith. Mr. Foley then called upon Durwood Butts, class of 1931. Mr. Butts gave humorous anecdotes, among which were his "inner sanctum" sessions with Mr. Smith.

Rev. Dr. Pascal DiFlorio, pastor of the Methodist churches of Brownville and Glen Park, was called upon and spoke of his admiration for Mr. Smith and of his regret at his retirement.

Gordon O'Reilly, class of 1931, now physical instructor in Mohawk, told how Mr. Smith had influenced his choice of a career by asking him if he would like to go in for football when he weighed but a scant 98 pounds at the time.

Rev. Melvin Abson, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Brownville, gave Mr. Smith praise in regard to his interest in the children and their parents outside of school hours. Mrs. Victoria Burns spoke of former days when she was a member of Mr. Smith's teaching staff.

Miss Cora Wilder, former school nurse at Brownville-Glen Park, and now health nurse in the department of hygiene, Albany, told how the training she received while working with Mr. Smith was helping her in her present position.

Miss Grace Allen, another former teacher, recounted a number of humorous incidents which occurred during the time she was employed on the teaching staff.

Rev. Herbert Harrison of Sandy Creek, former pastor of the Brownville-Glen Park Methodist churches, said: "Mr. Smith has dedicated his life to changing the viewpoint of boys and girls and teaching them to see rightly."

Benjamin Sharp, mayor of Glen Park, recalled the days when, as a member of the school board, he worked in close association with Mr. Smith.

Mrs. Taber read letters of regret from Doris Benson, Richard Ralph, Bessie Dunny Tanner, Rosemary Roorbach of Memphis, Tenn.; Frank Jacox, former student, now living in California; Rollo Wicks, Maude Fullmer and Rev. John R. Campbell.

District Superintendent of Schools Henry W. Ciegler of Sackets Harbor recounted the additions to the curriculum during the years of Mr. Smith's principalship.

After extending best wishes to Mr. Smith, Mr. Ciegler pledged himself to help the new principal, Edward Yackle, maintain the same high standards in the school.

Rev. Father McGowan spoke of his respect for the profession of teaching and of the change in teaching methods through the years.

Fred Page, former president of the school board, related humorous incidents of his association with that body and with Mr. Smith.

Mr. Yackle expressed appreciation at being invited to a testimonial dinner for "a man who had already accomplished what most men were only trying to do."

District Superintendent F. M. Carr of Oneida, predecessor to Mr. Smith at Brownville-Glen Park, gave a history of the schools in both villages before the central school was built and a review of the building of the school.

Mr. Carr also told of some of Mr. Smith's teaching habits, such as never being able to sit still while teaching, and of never having to use a text book in class.

Bert Hewitt, member of the board of education for 17 years, presented Mr. Smith with a lounge chair on behalf of the school board and others participating in the event.

In response, Mr. Smith expressed his thanks to all who had been instrumental in helping through the years. He said, "this milestone at which I have arrived tonight comes to everyone. Some people at this point look down from a mountaintop of success, but I look down from only a slight elevation, and I am glad because a community does not measure a man by his success but by his effort."

He complimented Mr. Hewitt upon his 17 years' work as a member of the board and Mr. Foley for his efforts in making a better school. Mr. Smith said his associations with such men had made him a far better man than he would have been if he had never taught in Brownville-Glen Park school. In closing, he thanked the donors of the gift and the people for 34 years of support.

The dinner committee was composed of Mrs. George Park, Mrs. Clayton Tabor and Ralph Barrett.

Frank E. Smith was born in Fairfield, Clay county, Nebraska, and received his early education in the grammar school at that place. In 1886, he moved to Dexter, N. Y., and attended school there, graduating from Dexter High school in 1902.

He learned the carpenter trade and engaged in that occupation for several years before taking a position as teacher in the rural school at Perch River in 1908. In 1909, he transferred to the school at Limerick and remained there until 1912, when he was engaged as teacher of the eighth grade in the Brownville-Glen Park school.

He became principal of the school on 1920, and was never absent from his duties because of illness during the 34 years of his teaching career.

In 1906, Mr. Smith married Miss Blanche Bailey of Dexter, and the couple has always resided in that village.

After retirement, Mr. Smith plans to live in the home which he owns at Dexter. When interviewed, he said, "for recreation I shall do a little carpenter work in my shop and care for the garden."

The Brownville - Glen Park school building was erected in 1911, and was only one year old when Mr. Smith became principal. In 1922, the building was enlarged to its present size. The current system of centralization was inaugurated in 1940.

Redwood Woman Is "Stuck-In-The-Mud"

REDWOOD — The warm rains during the past week and sunshiny days have made late planted gardens respond quickly as to seeds germinating and plants coming up.

Farmers, however, have had a bad time trying to get on their low lying lands because of muddy conditions.

Speaking of mud, there's a certain woman in Redwood who knows now what miring down means.

A day after the last hard rain, she took a look at her tomato plants to see if there were bugs on them and, sure enough, some of the leaves looked like sieves.

She donned rubbers and armed with a bug powder can started down the row to give them a little medicine.

Two steps, fine, the third, one foot in and sinking fast; the other foot forward to pull out and, both feet stuck securely in that soggy, gooey clay, half way to her knees.

Her neighbor, hearing her call, saw her predicament and came to her rescue with a wide board. After much giggling, scrabbling and clawing, she managed to wiggle out of her foot apparel and crawled out of the mire.

The problem, then, to get shoes and rubbers, out of sight and full of mud, which, by driving both hands and arms into the mud holes, she retrieved, with mud clear to her elbows.

Determined to finish her task, she did so, barefooted and with the aid of board. Then, with her kind neighbor's solicitations and with the use of her rain barrel full of water, she managed to come out from under her mud bath reasonably clean and wise in learning that seemingly crusted over clay ain't as safe as it looks especially after it rains.

DEXTER WOMAN IS 88 YEARS OLD

Mrs. Mayme V. Jackson Active at Home, in Church And Societies.

Dexter, June 22.—Mrs. Mayme V. Jackson, widow of Thomas Jackson, will observe her 88th birthday Friday at her home, 220 Water street. A descendant of pioneer families of this area, she is the oldest woman in the village. Since the death of her son, Deputy Sheriff Fred V. Jackson on Feb. 11, 1953, her only relatives are cousins.

She is active in her home, church and fraternal organizations. Without help, she cares for the large brick house and the needs of her two boarders, William Baker and James Kitto. During her spring housecleaning this year, she painted and papered some of the rooms herself. During the past 25 years many school teachers and mill workers have boarded at her home.

The house, which Mrs. Jackson has owned since the death of her mother in 1927, was built in 1840 by James A. Bell, her great uncle, and is one of the oldest in the village. Mr. Bell had developed a large warehouse and shipping business and built the brick store at William and Canal streets. He was a state senator for three years and state auditor of canals.

Mary Vance Jackson was born June 24, 1867, daughter of William S. and Susan E. Bell Vance, on the farm at Muscallonge in the town of Hounsfield, which her grandfather, Capt. William Vance, had settled in 1826.

Captain Vance, who had made three voyages from Belfast, Ireland, as a sea captain before he "retired" at 21 years of age, had to blaze a trail to his farm from the old Sackets Harbor military road.

As a girl, Mrs. Jackson attended school and graduated from high school at Sackets Harbor and learned the milliner's trade from Minnie Holbrook there. She was married to Thomas Jackson, March 13, 1889 at her parents' home.

He drove the Dexter to Watertown stage from 1894 to 1897 and then for seven years ran a hotel and livery stable in Sackets Harbor. In 1904 they purchased the Maldoon House, now the Dexter Hotel, and Mrs. Jackson operated it for several months after her husband's death on Dec. 15, 1905, before selling it to William Carroll.

Mrs. Jackson then worked for five years as a milliner in Watertown, as telephone operator for the next seven years on the Dexter exchange, and as cashier in the E. L. Markham store in Dexter until 1927.

She has been active in All Saints Episcopal church, Dexter for 50 years. She is an active member of Rivergate lodge, and Brownville chapter, O. E. S. She has been a member of the Twentieth Century Study club and the auxiliary of the Dexter fire department. She was a charter member of the auxiliary of Joseph K. Barnes post of the G. A. R. in Sackets Harbor and an officer until the group became non-existent. Her father had served as a private in Company R of the 10th New York heavy artillery from 1861 to 1865.

Mrs. Mayme V. Jackson

MAN DIES DOING CHORES ON FARM

Frank F. Margray, 88, Rosiere, Expires of Heart Attack.

Rosiere, Sept. 4.—Frank F. Margray, 88, farmer here all his life, died of a heart attack while doing farm chores this morning at 7. He was bringing the cows in for milking when stricken. Found by his wife when she noted there was no activity in the barn, Mr. Margray was pronounced dead by Dr. Rudolph J. Haas of Chaumont.

The funeral will be held Thursday morning at 9:30 with a prayer at the family home and at 10 at St. Vincent de Paul's church, Cape Vincent. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Marguerite T. Margray, Mr. Margray is survived by two sons, Louis F. and Francis E. Margray, both of Clayton; a sister, Miss Ida Margray, Rosiere; a brother, Edward P. Margray, Rochester.

Mr. Margray was born April 1, 1888, at Rosiere, son of Peter and Margaret Aubertine Margray. He had always lived on the present farm, formerly owned by his parents. He married the former Marguerite Thibault Nov. 26, 1919, in St. Mary's church, Clayton, Rev. Father LaRock officiating.

Postoffice at Rosiere, Opened in 1850's, Was Closed Forever June 1

Cape Vincent, June 5. — The Cape Vincent Rosiere postoffice was closed Saturday, June 1. The patrons will receive their mail hereafter from the rural carrier out of the local postoffice.

Several life time residents have stated that the office opened soon after the railroad went through the village which was in 1852. Apparently no records were kept since information covering the postoffice is very sketchy.

It is believed that Theodore Aubertine, uncle of Charles Aubertine of Rosiere, was the first postmaster at Rosiere. He used a small red building in front of his barn which was later used as an ice house by Edward Gosier. He was succeeded by Harold father of Mrs. Charles Aubertine.

Louis Branche was the second known postmaster, then Englebert Solar. He occupied the building which is now known as the "George White store," where he had a general store as well as the postoffice. Louis Dunlay was next and also had a general store in the present postoffice building. It was later moved back to the George White store and remained there until E. C. Wiley was appointed postmaster. It was then moved back to the present site. At his death his daughter, Blanche Wiley Constance was appointed. With her resignation, her brother, Frederick Wiley, was appointed and remained postmaster until the office was closed.

The first known rural carrier was Simeon Branche, whose father came from Rosiere, France. This is where Rosiere received its name. Following him the carrier were Leonard Irving, Raymond Constance, Fay Reed, Elton Far James Knight and Raymond Constance. With Mr. Constance's retirement in 1956, the route was divided between Cape Vincent and Clayton with Clarence Allen as carrier out of Cape Vincent and Lincoln Bertran of Clayton.

The first mail came by railroad but in the later years by motor express from Watertown. Bernard Constance was appointed to intercept the Watertown-Cape Vincent mail truck at Docteur's Corners, for the Rosiere mail. He was succeeded by Harold (Pat) Stumpf who has carried the mail twice a day for 14 years. Rosiere was named by the early settlers after their native Rosiere, France. The original settlement was about a mile south of the present village, and had a church hotel and school. The school was built on land donated by the Deszegremel family. The hotel was called Belle France and was opposite the site of the church.
